

It is another regular day in town, and inside the flat of Calimero and friends Priscilla is seen sitting on the couch. She is apparently in daydream land, fantasizing about her friendship with Calimero.

"Sigh... Me and Calimero have known each other for years now, and I know we're the best of friends. But I just can't help thinking that one day our friendship might extend to something much bigger like romance, a big nice wedding, marriage, and the like..." Priscilla said to herself while sinking deeper into her daydreaming, with images entering her mind about the things she just mentioned, particularly the last bit; marriage. She then snaps back into the real world as she comes to a realization.

"Ah, of course. Me and Calimero are simply too young to even marry ourselves. Aw... but I just can't wait for the day to come... what to do about it..." said Priscilla and sinks down into the couch. An idea then pops into her mind.

"I've got it! While I'm still too young to even think about any real marriage, at least I could stage up a wedding play, and ALL of my friends are welcome to be part of it!" Priscilla said and excitedly gets up of the couch to work on preparing for the wedding play, the first thing being to write invitations.

"Right, time to start writing the invitations..." she said after getting into her bedroom, and sits down at her table to start writing. Just passing by her bedroom door outside, Susie stops to watch Priscilla sitting at her table writing on something.

"Um, sorry if I'm bothering you, but what are you doing?" asked Susie.

"Would you please not disturb me right now Susie? I'm quite busy with... er, something." Priscilla told her, refusing to tell any more.

"But what exactly is it?" Susie wondered.

"Er... It is just some homework of mine. Now, would you please close the door?" Priscilla said. Susie does as told and closes the door to Priscilla's room. Having heard Susie's chatter with Priscilla, the other friends asks her what Priscilla is doing.

"I'm afraid I don't know guys. She said she's doing some homework, but I think it is something else..." Susie said while swinging one of her pigtails slightly with her finger.

"But it must be something she's having on mind. You did ask her for more information, didn't you?" Roshita asked.

"I did, but she refused to tell any more. She also wanted to be left alone, so I closed the door to her room. I think it's best we don't disturb her." Susie said.

"Me thinks the same. Though I still wonder what she's planning..." Valeriano said.

"So do I... perhaps, it has something to do with me?" Calimero guessed to himself.

"It's always a possibility." Shrugged Piero. Just after saying this he takes a moment to listen.

"Um, what are you doing?" Valeriano asked him.

"Just listening, in case any of you guys are about to give me a look of disapproval. I know my comments often aren't the best, but..." Piero stopped.

"Come on Piero, we're not about to tell you off or anything!" Valeriano said.

"Just as Valeriano said, me and the others don't think you said anything bad this time!" said Roshita and pats him on the back.

"Really??" said Piero, feeling a bit confused.

"Yeah. Maybe you are even right. I think it might be me Priscilla is thinking of!" Calimero assured him.

"So I don't have to stand corrected then?" wondered Piero.

"No." said Calimero, with the others nodding in agreement.

"Oh, alright then. Guess we'll forget about it then and go on with life as usual. Still wonder what Priscilla is thinking of though..." Piero said as he sits down on his chair.

"So do the rest of us..." Valeriano said and starts polishing the lens on his video camera.

As night falls, Priscilla is now lying in her bed, feeling content with the work she's done today.

"Well, sure was a lot of effort writing on those invitation letters, but those were nothing compared to the other stuff I did today in preparation for the wedding play tomorrow. Aw, I can barely wait for it to happen!" Priscilla said and clamps her hands together while the feeling of love and romance flows through her body.

"I'm sure it'll all go as planned tomorrow! Anyway, time to go to sleep. I'm a bit tired after all the things I've done..." Priscilla said and takes her alarm clock and sets the time to 4:30 in the morning, which seems like an unusual time for her to get up. After putting the clock back on the table she then turns off her bed lamp and goes to sleep.

After the night has passed the sun starts to rise. In the flat of Wario-Ware-Man and his brothers Warrio has gotten up rather early to do a very special task, given that squawking is heard from the living room.

"Alright alright, I'm coming..." a somewhat drowsy and not-completely-awake Warrio trudged his way out to the kitchen. After preparing the bowl with garlic-flavored seeds along with a real garlic on a plate, Warrio makes his way into the living room. In there Warrio's parrot is squawking and complaining for someone to give him food.

"Yeah yeah, here's your food. And you'd better be quiet now, or we'll risk waking up everyone in the house!" Warrio said and puts the plate on the living room table. He opens the door to the cage to let the parrot out so he can stretch his wings while eating on his meal.

"Alright, feeding parrot done. Now, to trudge my way back to bed..." said Warrio and is about to head back to bed, but stops for a moment.

"On the other hand, now that I'm up on my feet, I might as well fix myself some garlic pancakes for breakfast." Warrio said and is about to go back to the kitchen until he hears something coming from under the door to their flat.

"Hunh, what was that? Sounds like the mail arrived rather early today! Better hope it's not the usual stuff that we always get..." Warrio said and goes to get the mail, expecting it to be just ads or bills. To his surprise it's neither of it this time around, but a letter addressed to their apartment.

"Guys, wake uup!! Come and have a look at this!" Warrio called out to his brothers.

"Yaawn, alright Warrio, what is it? Why are you up so early??" asked Wario-Ware-Man.

"My parrot wanted an early breakfast today, so I had to go up and feed him..." Warrio said.

"Oh, is that all? Alright, I'll just head back to bed..." said Wario-Ware-Man and turns around to go back in.

"But that's not what I wanted to tell you! A letter just arrived in our flat!!" said Warrio and holds the letter up in his hand.

"A letter you say??" asked Wario-Ware-Man out of curiosity.

"Yeah. In fact, it is addressed to us. Come here and have a look." Warrio said.

"Yaawn, what is all the noise about? And why did anybody wake me up in the first place? It's like 5 'o clock in the morning!" VARIO said.

"We got a letter adressed to our apartment!" said Wario-Ware-Man.

"A letter? It's rather early for the postman to deliver any mail... what kind of letter is it?" said VARIO.

"We're about to open it and find out. Even I'm itching to know what exactly this could be." Wario-Ware-Man said. They open the letter and read it out, and are rather surprised over what said in the letter.

"Hm, this seems pretty interesting and important!" said Warrio.

"Yeah. It sure is..." said Wario-Ware-Man, not saying anything more at the moment.

Meanwhile, in a house a bit away from the apartment complex Calimero and friends live in, Maya the Bee is shown to be living in there, having just gotten up to fix herself some breakfast consisting of honey sandwiches and a cup of honey tea.

After having gotten herself seated at the kitchen table she tucks in to one of the sandwiches and sips on her tea. She then looks out of the window, reflecting over all things that has been going on in her recent life.

"Sigh... I sure have been living life since my younger days of being a simple, but young and curious bee. Who would've thought I'd meet a trio of fat guys and have exciting and interesting adventures with them? Not me, that's for sure. Then we moved out from that little island which is nowhere on the map and settled into this town where we met Calimero and his friends. Since then we've been investigating crimes and solving mysteries together. All this stuff is something that would never occur in my old homeplace..." Maya said as she keeps reflecting on her times throughout her recent life.

"The reason I moved out of the flat of Wario-Ware-Man and his sibling brothers is I felt a bit tired of having to share the space with them, and I wanted to move into a house of my own. I don't regret it though; I got a rather spacious, grassy lawn outside my house big enough to do all the gardening, or even just relax for a bit. But I'm still open to keep in touch with my friends, and they're more than welcome in here should they decide to pay me a visit." Maya said to herself.

After finishing her breakfast, Maya goes to the door of her house to see if any mail has arrived. Not seeing anything, as Maya is about to turn around she spots a single letter on the floor.

"A letter? How come I didn't see that." said Maya and picks it up.

"It's addressed to me. I wonder what it could be..." Maya said and opens the letter. After reading it she is surprised that it entails a very important event taking place on this very day.

"So a wedding play is going to be staged up by Calimero and Priscilla! It is Priscilla herself who has signed the letter, I can tell it by the handwriting." Maya said to herself. Her telephone then starts to ring.

"My phone is ringing! But why so early in the morning? I usually have the phone ring during the day or the evening... I'll go and get it." Maya said and goes to the phone in the main hall to answer it.

"Hi, this is Maya the Bee. Who am I speaking to?" Maya said. On the other end of the line is Wario-Ware-Man speaking to Maya.

"Hey there Maya. How are you doing? Is life going well in your new house?" asked Wario-Ware-Man.

"Oh, hi Wario-Ware-Man! Yeah I'm doing fine. And life couldn't have been any better! I do miss being with you guys though." said Maya.

"Oh, alright." said Wario-Ware-Man.

"So, what did you want to tell me?" asked Maya.

"Oh, yes. I almost forgot... We got a letter this morning, and we found out that Priscilla is planning a big wedding play today!" Wario-Ware-Man said.

"I know. I also got a letter inviting me to the play. Are you guys planning to go there?" asked Maya.

"Well..." Wario-Ware-Man was about to answer, but is interrupted by Warrio's parrot who has started to feel rather cranky and keeps squawking.

"Um, sorry but I've got to hang up now. Warrio's parrot has started to squawk again for no reason, and none of us knows what it is all about." said Wario-Ware-Man.

"Oh, ok. Well, take care you guys!" said Maya.

"And yes, we're planning to come to the play. Will you be coming as well?" asked Wario-Ware-Man.

"I'd love to! I'm certainly not gonna miss it." Maya said.

"Alright then. Bye." said Wario-Ware-Man.

"Bye bye." said Maya and puts the phone down, after which she goes to her bedroom to get herself dressed for the wedding play.

Later on, everyone has gathered outside the apartment complex, ready to attend the big wedding play.

"You know, I can barely wait to attend the wedding play!" said Roshita.

"Same here. It will also be a perfect opportunity for me to do some filming again!" said Valeriano while polishing the lens of his video camera.

"I do hope you're going to only film the play itself, and not just any of us girls here." Roshita remarked.

"Aw come on Roshita. I know what I'm doing. I'll be filming only the play and what's going on in it, nothing else." said Valeriano and resumes polishing his video camera.

"I'm not the least pleased about this outfit of mine... I rather wanna wear my normal clothes." Piero said, finding his formal suit to not be his kind.

"Piero, you've got to wear it. We're also wearing our formal outfits. It would be rude of us to not wear them." Roshita told him.

"Er... well, I..." Piero was about to start, but is hugged by Susie.

"Aw, sweetie. I'm sure it'll be fine." said Susie. Piero takes note of the dress Susie is wearing, and is in awe by how pretty she looks.

"Hi hi, you like what you see, don't you?" Susie said, noticing how Piero now gawks at her. She isn't too bothered though and simply does a couple of gracious, stylish spins on the spot she's standing.

"Well, at least someone seems to be rather proud of her outfit." Warrio noted after seeing Susie, with everyone else agreeing.

"Who will be holding the wedding play?" Maya asked.

"Oh, that would be Warrio..." VARIO said while feeling a bit unsure of it.

"I sure will. I even have the speech prepared in case I would fluff the words or outright mess it all up!" Warrio said.

"That's what bothers me..." VARIO said in a low voice.

"Why? As long as Warrio knows what he's doing, I'm sure it'll all go just fine!" Wario-Ware-Man assured him.

"Alright. I'll have your word for it... but I still get the feeling he will mess things up..." VARIO said to himself.

"And who's going to do the ceremony music?" asked Susie.

"That would be me alright..." VARIO said.

"Don't be like that now. I'm sure it'll be something very simple for you to handle. What could go wrong?" said Wario-Ware-Man.

"We'll see about it..." VARIO said to himself.

They all keep waiting. The only one to not be with the other guys is Calimero. Just then he comes out wearing his best formal suit. Calimero appears to be feeling a bit nervous, if the sweating on his head is of any indication.

"Ah, there we have the guy, and he's looking very good too!" Maya said after seeing him.

"Hi there guys... um, is t-this suit g-good enough??" Calimero stammered.

"You look fabulous in that suit pal!" Valeriano said and pats him on the back.

"You sure do!" Roshita said. Everyone else agrees.

"I... I'm n-not so sure about this..." Calimero said.

"Look buddy, do not worry so much. It is only a play. I'm sure it'll all work out ok." Valeriano tried his best to assure his friend.

"I know I shouldn't be worrying, but... I'm just worried that I might say something stupid in front of Priscilla..." said Calimero, still being nervous.

"You only have to say 'yes' to any question asked. I'm sure the play will turn out just fine, trust us!" said Maya and gives him a small hug to make him feel less nervous.

"Hm... you're right, I have no reason to feel so nervous. After all, it is simply a wedding that's being staged up! It will all be going just ok." said Calimero and straightens the shell on his head a little.

"Where's Priscilla though? She's taking a rather long time to come out." Roshita said.

"I'm not quite sure myself, but I'm sure she'll turn up sooner or later..." Piero said, not saying anything more. The others just stare him in surprise.

"Piero, why didn't you say something stupid like you always tend to do??" Roshita asked him, with everyone else wondering the same thing.

"What? I just didn't have anything else to say. I also seem to have become somewhat semi-aware of my old habit in recent times, and I'm doing my best to trim down on that..." Piero shrugged his shoulders and goes back to just stare up at the skies.

"Well, I wonder for how long that will last..." Warrio wondered.

"Who knows..." Valeriano just shrugged.

A moment later they finally see Priscilla turning up. Not by the apartment complex door, but from behind the building, now at a giant size.

"Hi there guys. Am I looking good in this dress?" Priscilla said.

"Sorry for asking, but why did you take the time to make yourself big for a wedding play?" Warrio asked.

"Giggles I wanted to make this day more special by making myself bigger, and to also have something tiny to adore while we're at the wedding play!" Priscilla said.

"I figured as such... by the last bit she means Calimero will be the tiny one she'll be adoring." said Warrio.

"Well, I suppose everyone has their way of making the day extra unique." said a neutral-minded Wario-Ware-Man. Priscilla giggles again at the words spoken by Warrio and Wario-Ware-Man.

"Ok everyone, get ready for the big wedding play!" Priscilla said.

"Wow, Priscilla! You... um... you're looking very pretty!" said Calimero in surprise.

"Thank you my little sweetheart." said Priscilla and blushes a little. "Now, shall we go?"

"Let's do it." said Calimero and walks with Priscilla to the park where the play will be held.

A moment later, the big wedding day has finally come for Calimero and Priscilla, with all of their friends invited. VARIO is the one to play the wedding ceremony tune on a barrel organ, with Warrio holding the speech for the play. VARIO is not too pleased about his job.

"Graah. Ungh... I know I only have to do this for a few minutes, but it still hurts my arms just having to rotate the handle..." VARIO complained.

"Well, sorry about it. But that was Warrio's decision, not mine!" said Wario-Ware-Man.

"I know that. But... since this barrel organ is very cumbersome to handle, I wonder why Warrio didn't just bring with him a simple CD player with good speakers connected to it! Was that too much for his feeble little garlic for a brain to think about??" VARIO said as he keeps turning the handle, with Maya and Roshita chuckling at his words in the background.

After the tune has finished playing Warrio begins to hold the ceremony. Having written down everything he's supposed to say, he starts to read it out.

"Right, thank you all for coming here today. Never would I have thought that so many of you turned up to see the big wedding play, but I hope you blablabla, blabla, blabla..." Warrio read out, with the "blabla"s being all that VARIO hears in his head while Warrio keeps reading his papers.

"Yaawn... well this is all good and such, but I'm finding this introductory stuff rather boring... just skip to the important stuff." VARIO told Warrio.

"What? I'm just reading what is written on the papers here!" Warrio said.

"I know, but that's not what we're here for, and I think Calimero and Priscilla probably just want to get the wedding play started." VARIO said.

"Well, we don't really mind him doing that, but thanks anyway VARIO." said Calimero.

"Sigh... alright, away with the unnecessary stuff." Warrio said and tosses away the unimportant papers.

"Thank you..." said VARIO.

"Alright..." said Warrio and begins to read out the questions he's going to ask... or he would if his papers were in order. By some coincidence he has gotten some other papers mixed in with the actual ones.

"Ahem... well, it looks like there is some sort of debate going on at the politicians' department at town today..." Warrio read the paper.

"Psst, Warrio..." VARIO whispered to him.

"What?" Warrio whispered back.

"You're reading the wrong paper! That's not related to the play." VARIO began talking normally again.

"Really?" Warrio said in surprise and takes a second look at his papers.

"You're right. This is something I wrote down from a report I saw on TV yesterday!" Warrio said and tosses the paper away and reads the rest of it.

"Hm... Do not forget, that 3 'o clock at daytime is when you should go and feed the parrot..." Warrio read out. The other guys starts to chuckle at Warrio's goofing around with his speech, while VARIO just facepalms over Warrio messing up the wedding play.

"Aw garlic. I could've done a MUCH better job at reading out the questions than Warrio... I'd wanna take over, but now it is Warrio who's doing the ceremony, so..." VARIO said in disbelief.

"Wait a minute, that reminder was for last day..." Warrio said and tosses away the reminder, only to find a bunch of bills that have already been paid.

"Hey, those bills shouldn't even be in here! Something strange is going on here..." Warrio said.

"Warrio, get it all together now so the wedding play can actually start!" said VARIO.

"Shh... I think I'm hearing something..." said Warrio and starts to listen.

"What? I can't hear anything." asked VARIO.

Despite not hearing anything, VARIO still tries to listen to what Warrio is hearing. They both then hear squawking coming from the window to Wario-Ware-Man and siblings' flat.

"So it seems my parrot is the one behind the mixing up of the papers..." Warrio said.

"Do you really think so?" VARIO questioned.

"Yes. VARIO, will you go up there and retrieve the papers with the questions for me?" said Warrio.

"But it is YOUR parrot Warrio. You should be the one to go up to him!" VARIO told him.

"Well... I'm not going to. I have a very important wedding play to run here. Now go up there and get those papers!" Warrio told him again.

"Grr... alright alright, I'll go and get them for you, you big lazy..." VARIO muttered under his breath and goes up to their flat to get the papers back from the parrot.

"I'm sorry everyone for the start of this wedding play getting so messed up. It will soon begin in earnest, I assure you all." Warrio apologized.

Up in their flat, Warrio's parrot is shown to be in his cage, sitting on a bunch of papers while squawking in pride and mischievousness. VARIO then comes in and sees the parrot in the cage.

"Hello there, my sweet little garlic-loving parrot." VARIO said.

"Squawk! Hi fatso." the parrot replied back.

"Say, have you seen a bunch of papers in here somewhere?" VARIO asked the parrot.

"Squawk! No, I haven't..." said the parrot.

"I'm not entirely convinced there. HAVE you seen the papers?" VARIO asked him again. The parrot suddenly refuses to answer his question.

"Hey fatso, go and fix me some curry-flavored garlic! Squawk!" said the parrot.

"You're a real glutton, you know that! Now answer my question; where are the papers??" VARIO said, growing a bit impatient. The parrot still won't answer.

"Hm, I think he might be hiding something..." VARIO said. After taking a closer look he spots the papers under the parrot's behind.

"So that's where he's hidden them... Ok, I've now found that you're sitting on them! Now hand them over to me!" VARIO demanded.

"Squawk! No way, I'm about to use them as my toilet!" said the parrot, unwilling to let VARIO take them.

"The parrot is in his periods of mischief again... now, if only I could..." said VARIO and tries to reach his arm into the cage, only for the parrot to fly out and bite VARIO on the nose before flying in again.

"Aow!! That absolutely hurt! ... alright, there's only thing for it, and that is..." VARIO said and stays still for a moment while looking at the cage, and after a second he jumps into the cage to take back the papers.

"Squawk!! Get out of my cage fatso!!" the parrot squawked while flapping his wings, continuously biting VARIO on the nose to try and push him out.

Meanwhile, outside at the park Warrio is still waiting for VARIO to return. He then sees VARIO coming with the papers in his hand, all bruised up with bite marks over his nose and claw marks on his arms.

"Ah, there you are. I wondered for a moment where you've gone off to. And I see that you and my parrot have had yet another fight." said Warrio.

"You got it. The parrot is in one of his mischievous periods again apparently... here's the papers by the way." VARIO said and lends Warrio the papers.

"Alright, thank you." Warrio said and takes the papers. After putting the papers in the right order Warrio begins to ask the questions for Calimero and Priscilla.

"To start it off, I'd just say that you both are a young and wonderful chick couple, and shall be loving each other till the very end." Warrio began his speech. Priscilla just blushes upon hearing this. Warrio then cuts it short from here by tossing away even more unnecessary papers, and goes straight to the questions.

"So, Priscilla. Will you take Calimero to be your future husband?" Warrio asked her.

"Excuse me, but what do you mean?" Priscilla wondered.

"I was referring to your real wedding in the future." Warrio whispered into her ear.

"Oh, I see. Um... yes!" Priscilla answered.

"Ok then... Calimero, would you take Priscilla here to be your wife?" Warrio asked him.

"Um..." Calimero started to feel nervous. He looks over to Maya who nods her head to tell him to answer "yes" to the question.

"Um, yes!" Calimero finally answered.

"Good. On to the next question then... Priscilla, I ask you, if you will be forever faithful to your husband to be?" Warrio said.

"Yes!" Priscilla answered.

"Yes!!" Calimero answered as well.

"What... that was quick, I haven't even asked him the question yet. Oh well... Ok Maya, Roshita, and Susie. Would you please come forward?" Warrio asks the girls, who are dressed as bridesmaids. While making their way to Calimero and Priscilla Susie gives Piero a glance.

"You know Piero, maybe you and I should stage up our own wedding play sometime. That would be fun, don't you think so?" Susie said and playfully winks at Piero. Piero just blushes and tries his best to not seem attracted to Susie.

"Alright, have any of you got the ring? If so, give it to me." Warrio asked the bridesmaids after they've stopped behind Calimero and Priscilla. They all start rooting in their pockets, with none of them producing the ring.

"Er... alright then..." Warrio said and coughes a little in embarrassment, and just carries on with the play while waiting for one of the maids to give it to him.

"Ok, while we wait for the ring, I'm going to ask you the most important question; Priscilla, do you love Calimero?" Warrio asked her. Priscilla closes her eyes and folds her hands in a praying-like pose.

"YES!!!" Priscilla beamed, with happy tears flowing down her eyes.

"She definitely loves him, no doubt there!" Warrio said to himself.

"Alright, Calimero... do you also love Priscilla?" Warrio asked him. Calimero has apparently been in so much thought over how the wedding play is going to turn out and whether he'll make it all the way through, and he hasn't been paying any attention to what is going on right now.

"Oh, er... No!" Calimero answered, completely unaware of what he just said. Priscilla opens her eyes again in wonder and shock.

"Calimero? Did you just say that you don't love me??" Priscilla said.

"Er... I'm not quite sure what I said... Warrio, what was the question again??" Calimero asked Warrio.

"Well, it was..." Warrio started to whisper in his ear.

"Alright, now would you please try again." Warrio said. Just then he takes notice of the look of Priscilla's face.

"On the other hand, maybe there are no more tries... my garlic, this isn't gonna end well..." said Warrio and takes off his cap and hides his face behind it, not wanting to find out what happens next.

Indeed, it is far too late for Calimero to give it another try; Priscilla's day has now fallen apart, and her feelings have been hurt by Calimero's final answer.

"Sobbing M-my day has... has been falling completely apart... I did all I could to make this wedding play the most special, and, and... I get this!!" Priscilla said and is looking like she's going to cry any second. She then turns angry, with tears still flowing down her face.

"So during all these years I thought that you always loved me, even as a friend, and now you're telling that you don't love me?!! Fine, if you don't love me, then I can live my life just fine without you!!" Priscilla told Calimero off and starts to feel very upset. Calimero's mind then returns, and he is only now realizing his mistake.

"But Priscilla, I didn't mean to say that..." Calimero tried to apologize to her, but Priscilla starts backing away from him.

"Just leave me alone! I don't wanna see you again, and I'll never, ever talk to you again!!" said Priscilla and runs off crying. Everyone in the group are surprised over this sudden turn of events.

"Wow... I, I've never seen Priscilla get this angry before. Too bad for Calimero though..." said Piero and starts to feel sorry for his friend. The others agree with him. Warrio, who have been hiding his face behind his cap during this whole argument, lowers his cap a little to look around his surroundings.

"My garlic, it sure sounded pretty serious!" Warrio said.

"Yeah. Priscilla got upset and ran off." Wario-Ware-Man told him.

"Oh, really?? So, how could this entire mess be fixed?" Warrio said and tosses away all his papers, feeling that his services aren't needed anymore.

"It's not going to be that easy. Priscilla's feelings were hurt so bad by what Calimero said, and there is no chance that she'll listen to any of us." Maya said.

"Indeed, what I worry the most about is, if time keeps going for long enough, Priscilla might start thinking of breaking up with Calimero!" Roshita said.

Calimero meanwhile is feeling downcast and stupid, and blames it on himself for what has happened.

"Sigh... it's all my fault. If I weren't so deep in thought I could've gotten through it all with no issue... ah well, maybe I deserve to lose the one and only friend, and girlfriend I've known for years..." Calimero said and is about to walk away.

"Calimero, wait!" Valeriano said and ran over to him.

"Don't blame it on yourself buddy. It wasn't your fault!" Valeriano tried to convince him.

Calimero doesn't listen though and starts walking off to some place to be for himself for a while, leaving Valeriano standing in his place as the latter watches him walking off. The others sit down in the park to go through the events that just unfolded.

"Well... this day sure ended on a rather sour note!" said Susie.

"I think it's also my fault for messing up my speech so badly, now that I think about it..." Warrio said. Maya then pats him on the back.

"Don't worry Warrio. Mixups happens sometimes. Even I can be prone to get things wrong." Maya said.

While they keep discussing, Valeriano has been standing in the same spot for minutes, thinking about how Calimero blamed himself for all that has gone wrong. Being his best buddy and always standing up for him, and not wanting Calimero to sink further down, Valeriano decides to do something about it.

"I'm not gonna let my best friend just sink down like this. I'll go and talk to him!" Valeriano said and heads off to find Calimero.

"And there he also goes..." Piero said as he watches Valeriano disappear into the distance.

"So, what are we gonna do now? I mean, there's no wedding play to attend right now..." said VARIO.

"Well, I think we'll just have to wait and see if Calimero comes back." Roshita said.

"I somehow doubt it. I mean, Calimero messed up the play by answering the question wrong. It wasn't his fault though, I certainly know that!" Warrio said.

"Yes. I however think that Valeriano can talk Calimero out of it, I'm sure of that." Wario-Ware-Man said.

"I think the same. But I wonder what Priscilla might be going through right now." Maya said, with the others nodding in agreement.

Meanwhile, Calimero is shown sitting just outside the cafeteria at one of the tables. He keeps thinking over the wedding play that went so wrong.

"Sigh... I didn't intend for all this to go so wrong... all because of a single word... I wonder what Priscilla's thinking of me right now..." Calimero said and goes back to eating on his ice cream again he just started on before sinking into his thoughts. He then sees Valeriano coming.

"Hi Calimero! Glad I finally found you. I've been looking all over the town for you!" said Valeriano.

"Oh, hi Valeriano. Are you here to have an ice cream of your own, just like I am?" wondered Calimero.

"Er, not really. I just wanted to sit with you, if that's okay?" asked Valeriano.

"Hm... You may sit down." said Calimero. After sitting on the chair next to Calimero, Valeriano starts to converse with him.

"So how are you feeling, buddy?" asked Valeriano.

"Not too good right now." replied Calimero.

"I understand. It's about the wedding play, isn't it?" Valeriano asked.

"Yeah. I messed up really bad at the wedding play, didn't I?" Calimero wondered. Valeriano then pats him on the shoulder.

"You sure did, but do remember that it wasn't your fault to begin with. You was just being very nervous over how things would turn out, and I saw that very clearly!" Valeriano said.

"I know. But now that I've been thinking over all this, I now feel I want to resolve this entire mess, but I don't know how..." Calimero said. Valeriano thinks for a moment.

"You know, I think you should go and talk to Priscilla, personally. I mean, she is your friend, girlfriend, and also your cousin. You know her best, more than any of us in the group!" Valeriano suggested.

"Perhaps, but... I'm just not sure on how to apologize to her. I mean, what if she snaps if I say the wrong thing again?" Calimero wondered.

"It's ok buddy, it's ok. Take your time to gather your thoughts. In one way or another I'm sure you'll be setting things straight again." Valeriano said and keeps talking with Calimero.

Later at the park, Wario-Ware-Man and the others are still waiting for Calimero and Valeriano.

"Hm, the sunset's coming." Warrio noted while looking up at the sky.

"Yeah. Valeriano hasn't returned yet, and it is starting to get a bit late in the day..." Wario-Ware-Man said.

"I wonder how Calimero is feeling right now. What if he decides to leave the group??" Piero said, thinking about his good friend.

"Aw Piero..." said Susie and hugs Piero. "Valeriano is taking care of it by now. I'm sure Calimero won't be leaving us any time."

"I know I'm not one to usually worry about more concerning things than my own, but when something like this happens, I'm sure to... well, start weeping a little bit." Piero said and sheds a single tear.

"Well, Piero may be boastful, but he also seems to have a big heart..." Maya said.

"Yeah. Even though he won't show it all the time, on the inside he might be having concerns about his friends, should anyone in the group fall victim to anything bad or sad." Roshita said.

"Sorry if I ask, but Piero used to bully Calimero early on. What made him change?" Maya asked.

"None of us are quite sure. I believe he may have had done something really, really bad to Calimero at some point that made him feel guilty for his actions, and as time went on Piero probably became nicer towards him. It's only something I've heard though." Roshita explained.

"Well, even so I think that Piero today is a bit better compared to then, even if he still boasts every now and then." Maya said.

"I agree." Roshita said.

They then see Valeriano returning along with Calimero, now seeming much better in his mood.

"Ah, there you are! We've been waiting here since the sun started to go down." Susie said.

"Is Calimero doing alright?" Roshita asked Valeriano.

"Yep, he's feeling much better now." Valeriano assured his friends.

"I just knew that he could do it!" Susie said.

"But he's still unsure if he should go and talk to Priscilla." Valeriano said.

"Yes. What worries me more though, is she might be thinking of breaking up with me..." Calimero said.

"Now come on, there's NO WAY your best girlfriend would break up with you!" Roshita told him. "Her spirit just got shattered when you said 'no' by accident!"

"Yeah. She probably just got into a fit of anger, and overflowed with emotions she maybe didn't know how to process, she ran off. I'm fairly sure you can talk to her and apologize if you just have the confidence to do so. You do have the confidence to deal with other things, don't you?" Maya said.

"Yeah, I do!" Calimero replied again.

"Then you can also deal with this. Don't let a little accident stand in the way of things. Priscilla needs you, you need her, and the rest of the group needs her." Maya said.

"Precisely. So what are you standing here for?? Don't be a chicken! Go and get her! Show yourself that you can do it!" Roshita encouraged him. Hearing their words, Calimero realizes the girls are more than right.

"Sigh, they are right... I can't just stand here and mop over an accident that has already happened. The wedding play being messed up shouldn't be bringing me down like this! Come on guys, let's go find Priscilla!" Calimero said.

"Alright, then let's go!" Valeriano said. They all go except for Warrio and VARIO, who are still sitting on their bench.

"Um, VARIO?" Warrio asked him.

"Yes?" VARIO said.

"Was I being too harsh on you earlier?" asked Warrio.

"I don't think you were. You were probably just trying to make sure the wedding play turned out well, or something." VARIO said.

"Well, I do know that sometimes I may treat you with less respect. It's nothing personal though, just a old habit of mine." Warrio said.

"Even if I do think you maybe should treat me better, I can still live with it. Anyway, how do you think this day will end like?" said VARIO.

"Hm... I don't know. Maybe the group can get Priscilla back, or maybe she'll split up. It's too early right now to tell." Warrio said.

"Certainly... anyway, I can see a few Wario-Noses messing around at the wedding play set." VARIO said and points to the Wario-Noses.

"Yeah. Maybe they're looking for something to eat?" wondered Warrio.

"Perhaps..." said VARIO.

Later at evening, the rest of the group are still looking for Priscilla. They've been wandering through the town for a few hours now, unable to locate her anywhere.

"Where is Priscilla? We've been looking all over the town, and yet we can't find her anywhere!" Wario-Ware-Man said.

"We won't give up yet. In some way we're going to find her!" Valeriano said.

"That is, if she already hasn't left the town, considering she's almost twice the size of us..." Roshita said.

"I see something big over there!" Piero said and points out to the unusually big person sitting at the edge of the beach outside town.

"I think it's Priscilla, if going by the dress." Maya said.

"Well, she appears to have calmed down a bit, but it might be best to approach her carefully... Calimero, you go over there and talk to her while we stay here." Wario-Ware-Man said.

"Ok then. I'm going..." Calimero said.

"Best of luck to you buddy!" said Valeriano, with the others doing the same.

"Goulp... here it goes... remember now Calimero, don't be a chicken. You can do this..." Calimero said and starts walking over to Priscilla.

Over to where Priscilla is sitting, she's staring out at the ocean, looking very sad and heartbroken. She is apparently still upset over what Calimero said to her earlier in the day.

"Sigh... I still can't believe it all ended up going like this. I've been planning this wedding play since yesterday. I wrote all the invitations, bought the set and costumes, and I even picked the best looking formal suit for Calimero, only to have it all ruined!!" Priscilla said.

"Calimero said to me that he doesn't love me... well if he doesn't love me, then I don't love him either... or do I??" Priscilla began to doubt her feelings, but still let's the thought of Calimero not loving her overtake her mind.

"Well, has he said he doesn't love me, then he doesn't. I'm gonna have to tell him that I'm ready to start breaking up with him..." said Priscilla to herself while tears comes down. Even so, Priscilla is still not feeling too sure over her decision. She is then interrupted by the voice of someone familiar; Calimero.

"Oh, it's you... what are you even doing here?? Can't you see I'm sad and heartbroken?! You said you didn't like me, did you??" Priscilla said.

"Priscilla! I know what I said to you earlier was bad, and I'd want to apologize to you for it." Calimero said.

"Sorry, but you've got to come up with a much better excuse." said Priscilla, still not feeling convinced if Calimero is telling the truth.

"Well, about what happened at the wedding play earlier, I didn't mean for it to happen. I was just being so nervous that I didn't know what to say!" Calimero said. Priscilla is not having any of it however.

"Not good enough! You're always so nervous! So much so that it even gets in the way of things!!" Priscilla started to yell at him.

"Priscilla, please! A mistake was a mistake! I didn't mean to hurt your feelings or anything! I'm trying to apologize for what I've done, and I AM sorry for what I did! Won't you even forgive me??" Calimero said, now starting to shed a tear or two.

"Hmpf! You may try to sway me however you want. I'm still not forgiving you! Now just leave me alone!!" Priscilla told him and goes back to just sit and stare at the water. Calimero's not feeling distraught however.

"Alright... time for a different tactic. In one way or another I'm going to convince her that I still love her..." Calimero said and takes matters into his own hands.

While she's staring at the ocean, Priscilla suddenly feels something grabbing her hand. She looks down to see Calimero holding her hand.

"What is he doing..." was all Priscilla could say as she keeps looking down at Calimero.

"Priscilla, I... I'm really sorry for what I said. You may choose not to believe me, but despite all that's happened, I still love you no matter what, and... you are the bestest friend I've ever met in my life... I really don't wanna lose you, and neither will your friends want to!" Calimero tried his best to convince Priscilla that he still likes her. Priscilla tries not to mind him and turns her head away.

"No, of course he doesn't like me. He's just trying to fool me..." Priscilla thought to herself, expecting Calimero to just go away soon. Still feeling her hand being held, Priscilla looks down at Calimero again, who now is about to give up trying to convince her, now with even more tears in his eyes.

Seeing Calimero starting to feel sad and hopeless, Priscilla starts to shed some tears as well, and feels remorse for her boyfriend. She then starts to think back on the happy times she and Calimero's been having over the years, with the first flashback taking place on a large field filled with flowers. After Calimero has given her a bouquet of flowers he plucked from the field Priscilla kisses him on the cheek in delight. The next scene sees them sitting at the cafeteria in town, both of them sharing a big glass of ice cream together. They both giggle and laugh as they keep eating on the ice cream together.

The last scene is from when Calimero and Priscilla had their private night in their flat, with Priscilla watching TV together with a tiny Calimero sitting on her lap. As she uses her index finger to cuddle with him Priscilla let's out a giggle. Looking at the ring he put on finger on her right hand, Priscilla is more than delighted over the night turning out so well. Both Calimero and Priscilla are seemingly happy about each other's company.

Back to the present, Priscilla is now starting to come back to her senses again, with the tears now starting to flood down her eyes.

"What am I even thinking of doing?? I can't just break up with my best friend like this! He still loves me after all..." Priscilla said and starts to cry. She gently picks up Calimero in her hands and presses him gently onto her chin to hug him, with Calimero also hugging her back.

"I... I'm so sorry for yelling at you earlier... I didn't know what came over me when you said that thing at the wedding play!" Priscilla told Calimero, the tears on her eyes showing no signs of stopping.

"It's ok Priscilla! You were just having a fit of anger and disbelief when I said the wrong thing. I'm just glad that we've made up now..." Calimero said and goes silent, and just keeps hugging his girlfriend.

"M-me too..." Priscilla said.

While Calimero and Priscilla keep hugging each other, Wario-Ware-Man and the group feels more than relieved that the situation has finally been resolved.

"Phew, at last things are starting to come back to order again." Wario-Ware-Man breathed a sigh of relief.

"They're back to being cute little love birds again!" exclaimed Roshita.

"I knew my buddy could do it!" Valeriano said.

"Hang on, where's Warrio and VARIO?" said Piero as he looks among the group. After he asks his question Warrio and VARIO then shows up.

"There you are! Where in the garlic did you go off to?? You just missed the big moment here!" Wario-Ware-Man said after seeing his siblings.

"Me and Warrio decided to just sit on our bench and have a quiet moment to ourselves." VARIO said.

"Yep. As for myself, I've been thinking over the mistakes I did during the wedding play earlier, and I've come to the decision to step down and let someone else take my place hosting the play. Maybe he or she could do a better job hosting it than me." Warrio said.

"Oh, ok. Does that mean VARIO will also be quitting his job?" Wario-Ware-Man asked them.

"That's right. Though I do wonder who's going to host the wedding play..." VARIO said.

Later at the park, it's still evening, and the wedding play has now resumed from the beginning. Warrio is now standing besides a stereo with a built-in CD player and some decent speakers connected to it. He turns on the stereo and the wedding ceremony tune starts. Calimero and Priscilla then starts walking together.

"I'm glad to no longer have to turn the handle of a big, clumsy barrel organ." VARIO said in relief.

"Yeah. I also am glad to not have to stand up and ask any questions this time..." Warrio said. VARIO then comes to think of something.

"Who is hosting the play? You didn't tell us about it earlier." asked VARIO.

"It is a certain someone with big wings and a blue dress..." Warrio said, refusing to say any more.

"Oh, I think I know who you might mean..." said VARIO and goes back to watching the play.

As Warrio vaguely hinted at, the person to be holding the play is Maya the Bee, and compared to the former she seems to be having no need for any papers to remind herself.

"Ok. I'll just start this session by saying that you Calimero, and Priscilla, are a young, cute, and beautiful chick couple, at least I think you are, and shall be loving each other till the very end." Maya said.

"Te hee, thanks Maya." said Priscilla.

"Ok then Priscilla, would you take Calimero here as your future husband?" Maya asked her.

"Yes." Priscilla answered, already knowing what the question means by now.

"Calimero, will you take this cute little chick lady here, Priscilla, to be your wife?" Maya asked.

"Yes." Calimero answered.

"Alright, on to the next question... Priscilla, will you be forever faithful to your husband to be?" Maya asked her.

"Yes!" Priscilla said.

"Yes!" Calimero also answered.

"Ok, you both answered the question, so no need for me to ask Calimero then. Susie, Roshita. Would you please come forward." Maya said.

As they walk, Susie glances at Piero and playfully winks at him. This time Roshita takes notice of it.

"Susie, why do you keep winking at Piero all the time??" Roshita wondered.

"Aw come on. I just like that sweet little mallard. Besides, I think it's working very well. I can see his face turning red..." Susie chuckled as she watches an now embarrassed Piero trying to not seem attracted to her.

Susie and Roshita then stop behind Calimero and Priscilla. Maya then asks them to hand over the ring.

"Ok, have any of you got the ring?" Maya asked them. Roshita roots in her pockets, but can't find the ring. Susie also doesn't seem to be able to find the ring in her pockets. Maya then comes to a realization.

"Oh, of course. How silly of me! I've been having it in my pocket all the time!" Maya said and pulls the ring out from her pocket.

"Ok, now to the most important question, and the one that determines how this wedding play will end; do you love your boyfrind?" Maya asked Priscilla. Priscilla reprises the pose she did the first time by closing her eyes and folding her hands in a pray-like pose.

"YES!!!" Priscilla beamed, with the same happy tears starting to flow down her eyes.

"Alright, good! ... Calimero... do you also love your girlfriend?" Maya asked. Now feeling more confident and certain it is all going to go well, after a few seconds Calimero starts to answer.

"Yes!" Calimero said.

"Ok. Now, will you put the ring on her finger?" Maya asked him after giving him the ring.

Priscilla kneels down to allow Calimero to put the ring on. After he puts it on her finger Priscilla blushes and giggles in pure happiness.

"Ok. You may now kiss each other!" Maya told them.

Due to being shorter than her, Calimero kisses Priscilla's hand with the ring on it which makes her blush and giggle even more, and in return she removes his egg shell and kisses him on the head which also makes him blush. The others in the group starts applauding and cheer, indicating the wedding play turned out well.

After the wedding play has ended everyone in the group are now doing their own things. Standing with Wario-Ware-Man and his brothers, Maya looks over to where Calimero and Priscilla are cuddling with each other, with Priscilla holding out her hand to have Calimero kiss it again since she liked the feeling of his beak touching it. Calimero does so, sending Priscilla into a state of bliss and love, with hearts appearing around her.

"Well guys. The wedding play finally turned out the way it was meant to be, and I'm more than pleased to have held the play for the love birds. I mean, just look at them..." Maya said.

"I agree. You did a pretty good job there Maya!" Wario-Ware-Man said.

"Honest, you did a even better job than me." Warrio admitted.

"Aw, you also did a good job with the play the first time around, even if things got a bit... heh, messy." Maya said and gives Warrio a hug.

"Well thanks. Although I don't really need a hug, I still appreciate it!" Warrio said.

"Te hee, you're welcome." Maya said.

"You know Wario-Ware-Man. I wonder if Calimero and Priscilla will ever get married for real. Do you think it would happen?" VARIO wondered.

"Actually, I wonder the exact same thing... even so, ANYTHING is possible! It is only a matter of not if, but WHEN that day will come..." Wario-Ware-Man said while looking at the happy chick couple still cuddling with each other.

The End...