

It's a relatively normal day in the town where Calimero and friends live, and in the flat of Wario-Ware-Man and siblings it is very much like any other day for them. At the moment Warrio and VARIO are having a bit of fun playing with Warrio's oftentimes cranky little parrot.

"Hey parrot, could you try and balance this garlic here on your beak?" said VARIO while showing the garlic to the parrot. Without hesitation the parrot starts balancing the garlic after VARIO puts it on his beak.

"Your parrot sure is in a good mood today Warrio, because he agreed to try balancing the garlic without any hesitation." said VARIO.

"I know. It's pretty rare for him to do anything we ask him to do, particularly when it comes to do tricks. It goes a bit up and down apparently." said Warrio.

"Do you think we will be involved in yet another case with Calimero and his friends today?" asked VARIO.

"I don't think so. It has been a few days since we last talked to them, and so far we haven't heard anything from them if another case or investigation will happen." said Warrio.

"Alright. Was just wondering..." said VARIO.

Just then Wario-Ware-Man enters the living room and walks past Warrio and VARIO.

"Hey Wario-Ware-Man!" said Warrio.

"Yes?" said Wario-Ware-Man.

"Where are you going with that flashlight in your hand??" asked Warrio.

"I'm going into the attic to have a rummage around, mainly to find our photo album to put some new photos into. But who knows, maybe I'll see some other stuff in there too." said Wario-Ware-Man and leaves the living room to go to the attic.

"What was the chatter between you and Wario-Ware-Man about?" asked VARIO.

"Wario-Ware-Man is going into the attic to find our old photo album. Gotta wonder when it was the last time we actually looked at it though..." said Warrio.

"The attic... I can only wonder what things might lurk in that room, given all the junk we've kept over the years." said VARIO.

"Who knows... even if we were to try take a look in there, there's probably boxes and such pretty much everywhere, so there will be a lot to go through, I think..." said Warrio.

Inside the attic, the door opens to reveal Wario-Ware-Man walking in while shining his flashlight across the room.

"One thing I really don't get in my head, is WHY no lights were installed in this room. It makes things rather hard to see..." said Wario-Ware-Man and closes the door behind him.

With the view now zoomed out to show the whole room, there are indeed lots of boxes and such stacked here and there, along with some other miscellaneous junk.

"MY garlic, we sure have kept a LOT of things throughout our life living together! Where do I even start looking??" said Wario-Ware-Man as he keeps twisting his mustache in wonder. With the photo album being the only thing on his mind now, he wastes no time and starts looking among the things they've accumulated for years.

"Where is the album?! It must be somewhere among all the stuff!" said Wario-Ware-Man and keeps looking through everything. While he fumbles around in the dark, Wario-Ware-Man trips on a small box.

"Ow, what was it I tripped over... huh, a small box... Could the album be in there?" said Wario-Ware-Man and starts rooting in the box after opening it. The first thing he finds is a small GBA cartridge of sorts.

"Hey, it is the GBA cartridge for "Wario Fatsos Inc.", the very first game me and my siblings helped craft and design together in our old days at Diamond City!" said Wario-Ware-Man and keeps looking at the cart for a moment, only to be reminded of an very old event that happened years ago.

"Hm, it really reminds me of that very day... my employees had just left WarioWare Inc, and I asked my siblings to come and help me with my new game..." said Wario-Ware-Man and starts having his first memory.

In Wario-Ware-Man's very first flashback, the scene starts with a view of a very tall mountain pillar, upon which stands a almost normal-looking, ordinary house, looking almost like Wario's old house prior to being redesigned into the WarioWare Inc building. Just outside the house Warrio and VARIO are seen resting on their chairs in the summer sun.

"Aah, this is life for sure. VARIO, have we got any mail today?" said Warrio.

"Um... Nope. If we have it would've been lying on the doorstep hours ago... and if we get any mail at all, it would mostly be those boring little advertisements." said VARIO.

"Ok. Was just wondering." said Warrio.

While they both keep sitting outside their telephone starts ringing from inside the house.

"Huh? Is someone calling us? We usually don't have anyone calling on our phone." said Warrio.

"Nope. Very weird..." said VARIO.

"I wonder who it could be... do any of us dare to even answer the phone?" said Warrio.

"I don't know there... perhaps you can go and answer it!" said VARIO.

"Alright, I'll go and answer the call." said Warrio and gets out of his chair to go in and answer the phone.

"Sure. Maybe it's just some boring salesman, as usual." said VARIO and goes back to basking in the sun. Inside their house Warrio answers the phone.

"Hello, who is it? Some kind of grammophone salesman?... You're not??... Oh, it's YOU Wario. Yeah, sure has been quite some time since we last saw each other... So your name's Wario-Ware-Man now?... Mhm?... ok, hold on a bit. Just need to write the location down... Diamond City, in the middle of the city, on top of a big mountain pillar... Alright, we'll be there as soon as possible... We're also getting some food?? Ah, great! We're actually a bit hungry... Alright, bye." said Warrio and puts the phone down.

Outside their house, VARIO is still sitting in his chair, now reading on a little comic. Warrio then comes out of the house running towards him.

"VARIO, VARIO. You won't believe who I just spoke to on the phone!" said Warrio.

"Aha, and who was it? Some kind of salesman?" asked VARIO.

"Not this time around. We've been asked by our old brother, Wario-Ware-Man, to come over to his company to help him design a new game!" said Warrio.

"What? You're joking?? We haven't had any kind of job for ages!" said VARIO.

"It's true, I tell you. I have a feeling this job won't be like any other!" said Warrio.

"Finally we can have ourselves some real food! The only thing we've been drinking and eating for several years is water and some small chocolates, and I'm getting a bit tired of it now..." said VARIO.

"We sure have. But if we go to Diamond City right away, right now, our life will probably change for the better!" said Warrio.

"Alright, let's go to our garage... which unfortunately is located way down under the pillar we're living on." said VARIO.

"Aw, no need to worry about it." said Warrio.

"But what if we fall while trying to climb our way down?" asked VARIO.

"VARIO, don't you remember we had an elevator installed inside the pillar so we didn't have to climb up and down all the time?" said Warrio.

"Ah, of course. Thanks for reminding me!" said VARIO.

After some chatter between the two, Warrio and VARIO heads down by taking the elevator they've built into the mountain, after which they take the car and drives off to Wario-Ware-Man's company. Later on, they are now at the place Wario-Ware-Man is said to live at; on top of a tall mountain pillar similar to their own.

"Well here we are VARIO. According to the directions Wario-Ware-Man gave me, this must be the place." said Warrio while looking at his note.

"Yeah, I can see that. But unfortunately there seems to be no elevator built into this mountain..." said VARIO after observing the lack of any elevator.

"What? How inconvenient! Alright, I suppose there is only one way up there then..." said Warrio and looks all the way up the pillar.

"What, you're not thinking about that??..." said VARIO.

"I'm afraid so. We have to try DRIVING our way up the pillar." said Warrio.

"Gulp. I can only wonder how this is gonna end for us..." said VARIO.

Warrio and VARIO starts trying to drive all the way up to the top of the mountain pillar, which they fail at multiple times. After several attempts they've finally made their way up the pillar.

"Phew, it sure was hard trying. But we finally made our way up here." said Warrio.

"I thought we was gonna hurt ourselves real bad for a moment there!" said VARIO.

"Yeah yeah. At least you and I are still fine, and the only that happened at the beginning was our car getting a few scratches and buckles... anyway, let's go see our brother!" said Warrio.

Warrio and VARIO are now standing at the door to Wario-Ware-Man's company. Warrio knocks on the door to see if their sibling will answer the door. The door then finally opens.

"Aah, hello there my siblings! I'm glad you finally came!" said Wario-Ware-Man.

"Well, what doesn't one do for some work and garlic, and to finally see our brother again!" said Warrio.

"Come on in guys, come in! We sure have got a lot to talk about." said Wario-Ware-Man and closes the door after letting his siblings in.

Inside the company they start talking a little bit. After that is done Warrio decides to ask Wario-Ware-Man about something.

"Well, it's great to know what each of us have been up to, but I want to ask you about something. Have you got any food? We're a bit hungry by now!" said Warrio.

"Oh, of course. There is some garlic leftover in the fridge. There's not a lot left in the bowl though..." said Wario-Ware-Man.

"Ok, I see that VARIO is already at the fridge..." said Warrio.

"And is wasting ALL the garlic leftovers!" said Wario-Ware-Man.

"Sigh, there gone all the food that was left... is there ANYTHING in here at all we can eat??" said Warrio.

"Burp! Hm, I ate all the garlic, and I'm STILL hungry..." said VARIO after having eaten all the garlic.

"There is a Pizza restaurant somewhere near the town. Why don't you pick up the phone and order some?" Wario-Ware-Man asked Warrio.

"Do you want a pizza too Wario-Ware-Man?" Warrio asked him.

"Yes please. I'm also feeling a bit hungry." said Wario-Ware-Man.

"Alright, I'll order some pizzas for us!" said Warrio and picks up the phone to dial the number to the nearest pizza restaurant in Diamond City.

"Hello, is it the Pizza restaurant? Oh great. I would like to order three pizzas, with garlic on them... no, the garlic should be whole, NOT in cloves! WHOLE garlics, I said! Got it? ... alright, thanks. Will they be arriving on the doorstep? ... What, why not? According to your website, Mona is always the one who drives the pizzas to your doorstep! ... oh I see, a Woodster is doing all the pizza deliveries now. Ok, we'll come and pick them up ourselves in that case..." said Warrio while talking on the phone.

While Warrio is talking on the phone VARIO has been rooting deeper in the fridge by taking apart the thing behind it that hides all the machinery, and has found something quite remarkable and odd.

"Hey guys, I found something very odd behind the fridge!" VARIO called out.

"What is it VARIO?" Warrio asked him.

"You won't believe the discovery I just made! Come and have a look for yourself!" said VARIO.

"Just a moment, I'm gonna finish my conversation on the phone... alright, we'll be picking up our pizzas in a couple hours' time, because we're pretty busy at work right now. Ok, bye." said Warrio and after putting the phone down he rushes over to VARIO.

"Alright, what is this discovery you said that you've made?" Warrio asked VARIO.

"There seems to be some grub left after all!" said VARIO.

"My garlic, you're right! Wario-Ware-Man, there is some food left in the fridge!" said Warrio.

"What, are you joking??" said Wario-Ware-Man.

"Nope. Come here and see it for yourself!" said Warrio.

"What luck, I didn't expect more food to be in the fridge! Last time I checked it was looking rather empty! Where did you find all this?" asked Wario-Ware-Man.

"I was looking in the fridge extra carefully, and I saw a bit of sausage sticking out. I removed the part inside the fridge which hides the machinery, and I found a whole bunch of food which in some strange way have just ended up there!" VARIO explained.

"Alright, finally we can something to eat!" said Warrio.

"Excellent! Then I suppose our pizzas can wait until we've released our new WarioWare game! Does that sound like a good idea?" said Wario-Ware-Man.

"Absolutely. I've already told the pizza restaurant guy that we'll be picking them up in a few hours, so we can start munching away on the food we already have!" said Warrio.

After some back and forth, Wario-Ware-Man and siblings decide to pick up their pizzas later for their eventual celebration of their newly completed game, and instead tucks in to some food that had been found just under the fridge. Later Wario-Ware-Man and his siblings are now in his work room, ready to start producing their new game.

"Alright guys, it is now time for us to start making our first new game together!" said Wario-Ware-Man.

"Do we have to make EVERYTHING from scratch, including assets and code??" asked VARIO.

"Of course not. In my little laptop here lies a backup of a previous project that my former employees forgot to erase before leaving the company." said Wario-Ware-Man.

"So, that means the project is already done??" asked Warrio.

"We did have an already completed version of the project which we were considering to mass produce someday, but my employees managed to wipe all traces of it, including the one on my laptop. The only thing I managed to find was a half-completed version of said project." said Wario-Ware-Man.

"Aaw garlic. What bad luck..." said Warrio.

"Indeed. And I thought we had the entire game ready to start modifying to our liking..." said VARIO.

"Actually, it's even more lucky from our side! With the project only half done, it means we can build upon existing ideas along with adding our own stuff!" said Wario-Ware-Man.

"I think you're more than right Wario-Ware-Man. Who knows, whatever new ideas we come up with could turn out to be EVEN better!" said Warrio.

"Really?? Hm, I wonder what things we could come up with." said VARIO.

"And with your help, we'll be able to finish the game and get it out on the market, and hope we'll rake in some nice cash from its immediate success!" said Wario-Ware-Man.

"So, which parts of the game should I and VARIO do?" asked Warrio.

"You will be doing most of the microgames except the ones I come up with. I'll be doing most of the graphics for the game, along with the UI elements and game scenarios. I've already got the music and sound effects from a previous WarioWare game, so we don't need to spend any time on that stuff." said Wario-Ware-Man.

"But now that your former employees aren't working here, doesn't that mean we have to scrub all appearances and references to them from the game?" asked Warrio.

"We might have to. But in that case we'll just replace them with strange caricatures, while also making their identities extremely ambiguous... alright guys, we better get to work now. This game is just waiting to get done!" said Wario-Ware-Man, and together with his siblings they get to work on the game straight away.

Wario-Ware-Man and siblings are having fun coming up with all kinds of microgames, including a microgame made by Warrio and VARIO named "Food Hog", which is basically a modified version of "Hot Dog Hog". "Food Hog", along with a number of other microgames made by them, quickly becomes Wario-Ware-Man's most favorite ones to be included in the game itself.

After lots of work and promotion, Wario-Ware-Man and his siblings are now sitting at the table with the TV turned on, eating pizzas as their reward for all their hard work on the game. By Wario-Ware-Man's seat are loads of briefcases filled with money, indicating the game has been a strong success for them.

"Well guys. It sure was a lot of work getting the game done and shipped out to stores, but it was all worth it in the end!" said Wario-Ware-Man.

"Indeed. Not only has the game sold millions of copies in less than one day, we're also rich!!" said Warrio.

"We sure are. And the money in these briefcases are ALL ours, and my former employees won't be getting a DIME of it!" said Wario-Ware-Man and raises his glass, with the other siblings doing the same. After having shaken their glasses they start drinking, and eating on their Pizzas while watching the report on TV about the new WarioWare game's successful sales. This is where Wario-Ware-Man's first flashback stops, with the scene now fading back to the attic where Wario-Ware-Man is still holding the GBA cartridge in his hand.

"Sigh. That day was sure a very good one. To think our adventures started with just a half-done video game project... the only thing I didn't like was where me and my siblings got kicked out from our own company!! ... even so, VARIO managed to fool Mona and the other guys by swapping the suitcases, so we kept our hard earned money in the end!" said Wario-Ware-Man.

"I wonder if the cartridge still works..." said Wario-Ware-Man and looks for the old GBA SP console in the same box, and sure enough he finds it in there, looking almost as new as the day it was finally put away.

"Alright, time to put the cart in to see if the game still boots." said Wario-Ware-Man and plugs the cart into the GBA SP. He turns on the console and is relieved to see that both the console and cart still works to this day. After having played the game for a brief moment Wario-Ware-Man turns the GBA SP off and puts it back in the box.

"That game, and the console itself, sure are quite a pair of hard fighters when it comes to longevity... anyway, back to try and find the photo album now." said Wario-Ware-Man and resumes looking around for their photo album. He then sees a slightly bigger box to his left side.

"Hm, could it be in there?" said Wario-Ware-Man and opens the box, only to find some more old items; a lone film reel and a strange remote control.

"Hm? That's quite an odd pair of items... I know I've seen the remote somewhere before, but WHERE?" said Wario-Ware-Man and keeps looking at the items for a moment. After having stared at these things for long enough he then starts remembering about another past event.

"Ah, of course! That time when me and my siblings were in that cinema!" said Wario-Ware-Man and starts reminiscing about another of his past adventures.

In the second flashback, Wario-Ware-Man and Warrio are in the cinema theatre run by Wario, having just bought their snacks and are sitting on their seats in front of the movie screen. Meanwhile at the place where snacks and tickets are being sold Wario is counting the money he has earned so far.

"Heh heh, what d'ya know. Never did I think anything would come out of this, but it did in the end! And money, lots of it!!" said Wario and keeps counting all the money, dollar bill after dollar bill. Just then VARIO arrives in the building.

"Well hello there, yet another movie enthusiast I see! Hi VARIO!" Wario greeted him.

"Hi to you as well, Wario. Has the movie started yet??" asked VARIO.

"You mean the movie in bio theatre number 2? It is about to begin soon, so you better be quick unless you REALLY wanna miss it." said Wario.

"And let me guess, you have to pay to get a ticket, right? NEVER, hand it over to me now!" said VARIO.

"Ah ah, stop it there! Pay up, or get outta here! Or in other words; no money, no ticket!" said Wario.

"Alright alright, was only joking. Of course I'm gonna pay." said VARIO and pays for a ticket.

"As they always say, have a nice viewing experience!" said Wario.

"Thanks, thanks..." said VARIO and is about to head off to find the theatre he is supposed to sit at, but realizes he doesn't even know where it is.

"You need help with something?" asked Wario.

"Um... yea." said VARIO.

"You don't know where the movie theatre is, do you?" asked Wario.

"Nope..." said VARIO.

"Maybe you'd like a map? It's only three bucks!" said Wario and holds out his hand.

"Grr..." said VARIO and pays three more bucks for a map, after which Wario gives him one.

"If the directions on the map turn out to be wrong, just look at the pics on the walls. Maybe they'll show you the way into the theatre!" said Wario.

"Right, right... Um, sorry if I ask, but... you're the owner of this cinema, aren't you? Aren't you supposed to know where all the movie theatres are in the building?" asked VARIO.

"Actually, I'm quite new here, so... I haven't got a clue as to where everything is! At least I found this pile of maps next to me, so I decided to also sell some maps to visitors." said Wario.

"Ah, I see... but thanks anyway." said VARIO and heads off to find his way to the movie theatre.

A little while later VARIO has since found the movie theatre and is now sitting with his siblings, about to watch the video that will be playing in a matter of minutes. Just then Wario comes in to also watch the movie.

"Hey guys! I wanna watch this movie too!!" said Wario who comes in running with bowls of garlic in his hands.

"Wario?... but, aren't you supposed to be selling tickets at the entrance??" asked Wario-Ware-Man.

"Naw, nobody else seems to be coming tonight, so I thought I'd sit here and watch some movies with you guys." said Wario.

"That's fine with us Wario. Where are you gonna sit by the way?" asked Wario-Ware-Man.

"By the front seats... Aaah!" said Wario and sits himself on the seat right in front of VARIO, blocking his view.

"Hey, move it a little you fatso! I can't see anything!!" VARIO told him.

"Shh VARIO, don't start it now! We're gonna have a nice night in here now, so don't complain!" said Warrio.

"But, Wario..." said VARIO.

"You hear what he's saying? Pick another seat if you wanna see the movie!" said Wario.

"Grr, alright alright..." VARIO uttered under his breath and picks another seat. Unfortunately for him, it doesn't take very long for Wario to get up and sit himself in front of VARIO again, all in an attempt to irritate him. VARIO tries various tactics to get a better view of the movie which haven't yet started, but resorts to standing up on his own chair in the end.

When the movie finally starts they're all hooked into the fight that is going on in the movie, laughing at the various gags occuring in it.

"Wa ha ha haa! The part where VARIO gets chomped by Warrio was really good!" said Wario-Ware-Man, almost laughing up the garlic he ate moments ago.

"That's right. Not that I found him to be tasting anywhere good, but... I only wonder how VARIO really took it all..." said Warrio.

"Don't worry Warrio. I didn't mind it much. At least we had fun during the fight." said VARIO.

"Oh, ok. If you say so." said Warrio and keeps watching the movie with the others.

While they're watching the movie, VARIO takes notice of Wario holding something in his hand.

"Wario, why are you having a TV remote in your hand?!" asked VARIO.

"Nothing special. It's just in case something in the movie stops working." said Wario.

"Aha, so the movie has a chance of breaking every now and then?" asked VARIO.

"Yeah. There's two types of movies in this building. One of them are normal movies, while the other type are virtual cinema movies; These kinds of movies have some sort of virtual datachips in them which provides a whole range of visual 2D and 3D dimensional effects that would otherwise be impossible to control manually, like going into the movie itself while it's been paused to repair certain defects on some characters and scenes, and many other things I have no real clue about. And I believe that this movie is one of them." Wario explained.

"Ah, cool!" said VARIO.

Within the movie, Wario-Ware-Man and his siblings are now seeing how an unknown fatso is just standing on his spot consuming boxes and other junk. Even worse for them, one of the boxes has a "Final Smash" ball in it, so Wario-Ware-Man and his siblings decide to grab it before the other guy does. By the moment they are about to shoulder bash is when the movie just freezes on the exact frame.

"Huh? What happened to the movie? It doesn't seem to be running anymore..." said VARIO in wonder. After he wakes up his brothers and explains the situation to them Wario-Ware-Man is intrigued over the very idea of the movie being virtual.

"So this very movie, which is now frozen, is actually some kind of virtual movie which can be manually controlled by just using a puny little remote control? Hm, I saw that Wario had a remote in his hand, so the question is; how can we get our hands on it?" said Wario-Ware-Man.

"I'm seeing it under his seat. He must have dropped it while he fell asleep." said Warrio and picks up the remote.

"Hmm. I'm sensing a feeling within me, a feeling of money! Are you guys with me?" asked Wario-Ware-Man, having just gotten an idea.

"Yeah, for sure. Let's go into the movie and remake it into our own version of the movie we've just been watching!!" said Warrio.

"Time to rake in millions of cash!" said VARIO.

"That's exactly what I was thinking of! Let's put on our 3D glasses!" said Wario-Ware-Man and puts on his 3D glasses.

"I'm ready!" said Warrio.

"3D glasses on!" said VARIO.

"Ok, I'll be pressing the button in 3... 2... 1..." said Wario-Ware-Man, and with just one press on the remote he and his siblings teleport themselves into the movie while it is still frozen, to remake it into their own version of it. The second flashback then ends, and Wario-Ware-Man just rolls his eyes up in wonder and amazement over their adventures back in those days.

"Heh, we sure did quite a bit of strange stuffs back in those days. We also caused a fair bit of mischief in that movie, which basically ended with the movie versions of me and my siblings roaming around Dumb-Isle which wasn't even called that by then...." said Wario-Ware-Man.

He then shoves the box with all the film reels aside and keeps searching for the photo album. During his search Wario-Ware-Man spots a large box to the right of him, with a very tall stack of magazines and comics on top of it.

"Maybe the album could be in that box." said Wario-Ware-Man and tries to pull the magazines down without causing too much noise. But as soon as he touches it the stack falls over him. Outside of the attic Warrio and VARIO hears the racket going on in there.

"Sure is a lot of noise going on in there!" said VARIO.

"Yeah. Not surprising considering all the junk that's in there." said Warrio.

"Do you think we should go in and help Wario-Ware-Man?" asked VARIO.

"Best not to bother him. We know it full well that Wario-Ware-Man doesn't like being disturbed during his searches in the attic." said Warrio.

Back inside the attic, Wario-Ware-Man has finally managed to sort all the comics and such into neat piles on the other side of the attic, and is now rummaging through the box he just found.

"Huh, I can feel something in there, and it reminds me of a book... is it the photo album I'm looking after?" said Wario-Ware-Man and pulls out the thing, only to find a notebook with lots of other things inside it.

"A notebook with other stuffs in it?? I wonder what it is all about..." said Wario-Ware-Man and opens it to have a look. He realizes that this notebook is where he has stored all the old bills that they have managed to pay and not pay years ago, stretching all the way back to their earliest days.

"All these bills and notes and such... I wonder why I decided to save all these bills. I mean, there's just no value in them! I sometimes wonder about myself..." said Wario-Ware-Man and is about to close the notebook only to see something that sticks out to him; a application note for his Wario-Bike driver's license from June 2010.

"This is the application note for my driver license!" said Wario-Ware-Man and starts reading the note. After having read it he is then reminded of yet another past event.

In his third flashback, Wario-Ware-Man has gone to the Wario-Bike driving school to re-new his driver license. He is sitting on a Wario-Bike with four wheels, a variant created for use in driving lessons. Wario-Man, the driving instructor and the one who owns and operates the school, is standing in front of him.

"Ok Wario-Ware-Man. You probably know how to drive a Wario-Bike by now, so I don't see any need to teach you the basics... unless you want to know about them too?" said Wario-Man.

"No thanks, I already know how to drive. So, which lessons do I have to redo?" said Wario-Ware-Man.

"Just a few. You already know how to drive, so I'll be leaving the first five lessons out." said Wario-Man.

"Phew, how nice of you to do that." said Wario-Ware-Man.

"On the other hand, the lessons you need to redo again are those that often doesn't get into the head of beginners like road signs, driving behavior on the road, and such." said Wario-Man.

"Alright, I get it." said Wario-Ware-Man.

"Ok, let's get started then! Oh, by the way. Lesson number one; Put on a HELMET!" said Wario-Man.

"Actually, this IS my helmet." said Wario-Ware-Man while pointing at his own biker helmet.

"Oh, sorry then. I thought it was just a cap with no visor." said Wario-Man.

"A mistake that is very easy to make." said Wario-Ware-Man.

"Anyway, let's get the lessons going now, shall we!" said Wario-Man.

After a brief discussion over the lessons that need to be re-done, along with Wario-Man mistaking Wario-Ware-Man failing to recognize Wario-Ware-Man's biker helmet as a... well, a helmet, Wario-Ware-Man moves forward to second lesson; Road signs and their meanings. The first lesson wasn't very important, and actually didn't have anything to do about helmets anyway. What that lesson really were about will never be revealed though.

"Ok Wario-Ware-Man, before we begin the test drive it is important to know about road signs, what they mean, and such. Think you can handle it?" said Wario-Man.

"Phah, that'll be rather easy... but I admit that I may have forgot what some of those signs mean, so... get the teaching on!" said Wario-Ware-Man.

"Alright then, let's see about this first sign here showing a adult and a little kid. Do you know what it means?" asked Wario-Man as he pulls up the first road sign.

"Hm... from what I can see they are crossing the street." said Wario-Ware-Man.

"Well, yes. But what does it MEAN? What's the meaning of it?" asked Wario-Man.

"Um... they're running across the street hoping to not be hit by a crazy Dumb-Crow on a motor bike?" Wario-Ware-Man guessed blindly.

"Pretty close, but STILL not the answer I'm after. What does the sign itself mean? What should you do when you see someone walking out on the pedestrian crossing point?" asked Wario-Man.

"Er... you keep on driving as fast as possible and hope the pedestrian doesn't end up flat as a pancake?" said Wario-Ware-Man.

"NO. You stop the vehicle and let the pedestrian across. About that last thing you said, it's true that the pedestrian shouldn't end up flat as a pancake... unless it is a mean guy of course." said Wario-Man.

"Oh, I see." said Wario-Ware-Man.

"Anyway, let's carry on... what does this sign mean?" said Wario-Man and pulls out a red "STOP" sign.

"Um... "Look out, crazy Woodsters on the loose!!"?" guessed Wario-Ware-Man.

"Nope." said Wario-Man.

"Hm... "At this place we can have a STOP of garlic."?" said Wario-Ware-Man.

"No. Also, I don't know what you mean by that, and I don't think the readers do either." said Wario-Man.

"I also don't know. It was just something random I made up on the spot..." said Wario-Ware-Man.

"Anyway, about this sign here. What does it actually mean?" said Wario-Man and points at the sign again.

"A Dumb-Crow has swallowed a inflatable raft, and once he lets the air out he is going to cause a complete STOP attack??" said Wario-Ware-Man.

"No! If you see the sign, then you have got to stop your car, and this often applies in places where the sight can be pretty bad, and so on." said Wario-Man.

"Aha, so that's what it means." said Wario-Ware-Man.

"Roughly. Anyway, you haven't been listening that much over what I told you about road signs last time you were here, am I right?" said Wario-Man.

"I don't think I have. My attention was on something else by that time..." admitted Wario-Ware-Man.

"Well, try and listen up this time, fatso. Let's move on to this sign." said Wario-Man and pulls out a blue sign with just a garlic on it.

"Um... a garlic is crossing the street?" wondered Wario-Ware-Man.

"Perhaps, but still not correct." said Wario-Man.

"Ok... how about... A Woodster on a motor bike is trying to ram over it?" said Wario-Ware-Man.

"Aw come on, you already made that kind of joke before, and it wasn't even funny!" said Wario-Man.

"Since when did I ever make that joke?!" wondered Wario-Ware-Man.

Ahem, have you already forgotten about it, you big potato?? said Wario-Man.

"What are you talking about now!?" said Wario-Ware-Man.

"Sigh... just respond to my question in any way you want so we can get a move on, please?" said Wario-Man, now growing tired of Wario-Ware-Man always answering his questions wrong.

"Oh, alright... about the point with that sign... I have absolutely no clue there! Anyway, what does the garlic even mean??" said Wario-Ware-Man. After the former has asked this question, Wario-Man begins to reflect over the real meaning of the sign.

"Er... I have no idea there either. It was just something I drew out of boredom one day. In fact, what it's even doing among all the road signs I don't really know." said Wario-Man and tosses away the sign.

"Anyway, sorry for not having grasped the meaning behind all these road signs..." Wario-Ware-Man apologized.

"Ah, I thought so... but never mind that. Time to move on lesson number three." said Wario-Man and proceeds to carry on with the third lesson.

Meanwhile, in the house of Wario-Ware-Man and siblings, VARIO wants to go on the toilet and do number one, but Warrio is occupying it. This entire scenario is occurring outside of the toilet.

"Warrio, let me in! I have to go in and do number one!" said VARIO.

"Sorry VARIO, but I'm in here now reading the Fatso-News! You've got to wait for your turn!" said Warrio from the bathroom.

"Warrio, I can't just stand around here waiting for my turn. I need to go in NOW!" said VARIO.

"Do let me sit in here and read in peace. I am almost done!" said Warrio from the bathroom.

"And for how much longer are you gonna sit in there??" asked VARIO.

"Well, there's this garlic of mine that doesn't wanna come out, and..." said Warrio from the bathroom.

"Alright, alright. I get it. So you're not gonna let me have the toilet anytime soon?!" said VARIO.

"If you can't wait for your turn, why don't you just borrow Wario's toilet?" said Warrio from the bathroom.

"Like I would ever think of doing that... on the other hand, maybe borrowing someone else's toilet would be my only choice, because it looks Warrio isn't gonna be done in there anytime soon." said VARIO and rushes out of their house in his quest to find somewhere to do number one.

Excluding Wario's house, VARIO tries to ask various households for permission to use their toilets, with no success. It then gets to the point where VARIO can no longer keep his bladder shut, and resorts to do his number one business behind a parking meter.

"There. Since that last Woodster pestered me to go and do my business behind a parking meter, I might as well do it... unless the cop catches me..." said VARIO and is about to unzip his overalls, but before he can even do it a Woodster officer catches him.

"Alright you guy, stop with what you're doing!" said the Woodster officer.

"But hey, I haven't even started?!?" said VARIO.

"No, but you WERE going to, and there are rules around here about people doing their business behind a parking meter!" said the Woodster officer.

"Come on, I'm gonna be pretty quick about it! I promise!" said VARIO.

"But you won't be doing it anyway. You're coming with me, now!" said the Woodster officer.

"Whaaa?!?" said VARIO as the Woodster officer is about to escort him into a nearby police car.

"You did hear me. Now get a move on!" said the Woodster officer.

"But please, I have to go and pee!!" said VARIO.

"There's no use in arguing. Anything you say or claim can be used against you in court... or not, depending on how we feel." said the Woodster and escorts VARIO to the police car.

A while later, VARIO is now inside the police station, strangely enough NOT handcuffed due to an oversight on their part, and is soon going to be brought to court.

"For the last time, I was just wanting to go and pee!!" VARIO repeated his reason to the police.

"For the last time, NO! And just so you know it, there are NO toilets in the prison cells because we believe that prisoners not being able to do any lavatory business is the way to go." said the Woodster officer.

"You... dastardly log faces for police!!" VARIO cried out.

"Ha, you might as well pee your pants in prison. We're gonna roll ourselves over in laughter!" said the Woodster officer.

"How nice of you... by the way, isn't it time for your lunchbreak now??" said VARIO and points to the clock on the wall.

"Hm, you're right fatso! How could we even forget about it! Ok everyone, time for lunch!" said the Woodster officer and pulls out his little lunch box with a few small bags of Carpaccio's Tasty Leafballs and starts eating on them, with the other police Woodsters doing the same. While they are busy eating their lunch VARIO takes his chance to escape.

"Heh heh, they sure are very easily distracted... right, I better make my way out of this place..." said VARIO and sneaks his way over to the entrance, but the Woodster officer sees him pretty quickly.

"What the, that fatso is trying to get away!! Get him guys!!" said the Woodster officer and along with the other cops runs after him.

VARIO runs out of the police station. Not seeing any other vehicle around, VARIO takes one of the police cars and drives off in it.

"Hey, he stole one of OUR POLICE CARS!! Come on you logs, get one of our other cars! We have to catch that guy quick!!" said the Woodster officer and orders his police Woodsters to fetch one of their other police cars.

"Uh oh, looks like the police is after me now! I better try and shake them off in one way or another!" said VARIO as he is being chased all around Shadow Moses Island by another police car behind him.

Later, VARIO is still driving in the police car he stole earlier. He is still dead set on trying to find a toilet, but has to try shaking off the police behind his back in some way.

"My garlic. I only wanted to do number one, and now I am suddenly on the loose with a bunch of angry cops following me from behind! I do hope to finally find myself a toilet, because... my bladder is about to explode in any minute!!" said VARIO and keeps on driving. He then looks at the rear mirror again to see the cops now getting even closer to him.

"Huh? Never did I realize that the cops had such advanced gadgets for their cars?!!" said VARIO after seeing the cops having put a big jet rocket on the back of their cars.

"They are indeed gaining on me now! I have a feeling it is gonna be impossible to shake them off, unless..." said VARIO and spots a gas station just ahead. He gets an idea and pulls into the gas station.

"Huh? The fatso is pulling over to a gas station??" said one of the cops in the police car.

"So he is going to recharge his car then? Hm, a rather perfect time for it. We're almost out of fuel!" said the Woodster officer. The cops decide to also stop at the gas station to recharge their car.

"Alright fatso. So you just pulled over to this gas station here?" asked the Woodster officer.

"Yep. I had a feeling it might be time to refill the fuel in the car." said VARIO.

"Sure, go and do it. We're also gonna be recharging our car. Don't know how long it's gonna take, but hopefully not for very long." said the Woodster officer.

"We're going into the tiny shop in the gas station to buy some snacks, officer." said one of the cops and heads inside with the others.

"Sure. You've deserved it by now." said the Woodster officer.

"Heh heh, those guys sure are a bit stupid sometimes..." said VARIO and sneaks over to the police's car while the officer is charging it with his back turned. Remaining undetected by the officer, VARIO opens the door to the driver seat and closes it, and waits a little bit until the car has been charged enough.

"You know, this new jet rocket we put on the back of our car sure is draining quite a LOT of fuel! Suppose that's a small tradeoff for wanting more speed." the Woodster officer said to himself while waiting for the car to be fully charged.

"Wahoo! I'm finally outta here!!" a voice is heard shouting.

"Huh? What are they shouting about in there?!" said the Woodster officer in wonder, with the camera still focused on him. The view then pans to a shot of the Woodster officer on the left side, with the other cops now returning again.

"Alright officer, we've bought some snacks now!" said one of the cops.

"Say, was it you guys who were shouting in there?" asked the Woodster officer.

"No. What are you talking about officer?" asked the cop.

"But wasn't it you who... ah, never mind that. We've got a fatso to catch." said the Woodster officer.

"But hey, where did our car go??" said one of the cops. The camera then shifts over to a wider shot of all the cops, with the car the officer were standing by now being gone.

"What the?? He's already stolen it?! I hadn't even finished refilling the fuel!!" said the Woodster officer in disbelief and anger.

"Double crossed, again!" said one of the cops.

"There's still hope yet. That guy can't have made it that far! Let's take the other car he stole earlier!" said the Woodster officer and heads into the other police car with his men.

As for VARIO, he has already driven around 3 miles in the police car, with only 7 miles left to go.

"Hah, this car sure is a lot better and faster to drive in! Already am I only 7 miles away from home! I'm gonna be home in no time, that's for sure!" said VARIO and keeps driving. Unfortunately, after around 6 miles in total the fuel in the car goes empty rather quickly, forcing him to pull over to the side of the road.

"What? Surely the fuel can't be gone THAT quickly?! How typical. Now I've got to walk the remaining miles home! But first I need to find a toilet." said VARIO and starts walking all the way towards home. 1430 steps later VARIO then finally finds a toilet, and makes his stop there for a moment.

"Wahoo, this is like my lucky day! Wonder which of them are not occupied." said VARIO and tries to find any unoccupied toilets. In the first one he hears the voice of a Woodster and closes it. He then opens the second to hear a Dumb-Crow. When opening the door to the third one he hears the scream of a certain raccoon girl.

"Oops, sorry Applelin!!" said VARIO and closes the door to her toilet.

"My garlic, there has got to be at least ONE free toilet in here!" said VARIO and keeps searching. He then spots a single unoccupied toilet at the very end.

"Ah, at last! I've been waiting for so long now! ... Alright, I better go in and empty my bladder now. And NO cameras please!" said VARIO and goes into the toilet and closes the door.

Back at the driving school, the driving lessons have finally concluded, with Wario-Ware-Man seemingly having passed them all.

"Alright Wario-Ware-Man, congratulations in passing all the tests!! I never thought you would even make it to the end!" said Wario-Man.

"What? I actually made it??" asked Wario-Ware-Man.

"That's right. You can now keep your Wario-Bike, and drive around with it as much as you want!" said Wario-Man.

"Wahoo, I made it all the way through!! ... only one question though; why??" said Wario-Ware-Man.

"Well you see, my day here is about to end, and I can't be bothered to keep lecturing you about road signs every time. But you don't have to worry over that last bit..." said Wario-Man.

"Alright, I understand. But thanks for being there while I were redoing the lessons. I'll be heading back home now." said Wario-Ware-Man.

"Serves you right fatso." said Wario-Man.

"Bye bye Wario-Man, take care of yourself!" said Wario-Ware-Man.

"Bye bye to you as well, and happy biking on the roads!" said Wario-Man.

Wario-Ware-Man starts driving his way home, having passed every single test at the Wario-Bike driving school. When he finally arrives back home, Wario-Ware-Man finds the police standing outside the door to their house.

"Hey, what the heck's going on here? What is the police doing here at a time like this??" Wario-Ware-Man wondered in confusion.

"Ah, there you are. You must be Wario-Ware-Man, am I right?" asked the Woodster officer.

"Well, yes. I am Wario-Ware-Man. But what exactly do you want us?? What's been going on while I was away?!" said Wario-Ware-Man.

"We have a fatso on the loose, which has been suspected for attempting to pee behind a parking meter." said the Woodster officer.

"Absolutely not, we're not arresting anyone here! Me and my siblings are friendly and civilised fatsos, and NONE of us would even think of trying to pee behind any parking meters. Now get out of here and let us be!" said Wario-Ware-Man.

"Alright, I understand. We didn't realize that you guys were civilised and following the laws. Sorry if we came here and caused any trouble!" said the Woodster officer.

"Don't worry about it. But I hope you guys will be catching all those thieves." said Wario-Ware-Man.

"You bet we will. Come on guys, let's head back to the station and clear off our suspect list." said the Woodster officer and starts heading back to the police station in their car. Wario-Ware-Man then heads into their house and closes the door, and asks his brothers what exactly has been going on. VARIO then tells him his story.

"Ok, so if I've got it all right... it all started when Warrio was sitting on the toilet and VARIO was waiting for his turn. Rather than wait, VARIO rushed out to try and find a toilet, and got caught by the police, only to escape in a police car which eventually had its fuel all drained. VARIO had to walk all the way home, and eventually found himself a toilet, and now he's home again... I really don't know what to say now." said Wario-Ware-Man.

"I know. But I sure had myself a bit of an adventure there!" said VARIO.

"Whatever, let's hope anything more like this won't happen... by the way, I need to go on the toilet." said Wario-Ware-Man and is about to head into the bathroom, but once he opens the door he sees something that shocks him, after which he quickly closes the door.

"On the other hand, that thing in there, whatever it is, seems to have occupied it by now! I better head out and find a toilet quick!!" said Wario-Ware-Man and rushes out of the house to find himself a toilet.

"Sigh. I'm sensing a repeat of history here..." said Warrio.

"Wonder how it all is gonna end for him..." said VARIO.

"I'm also not quite sure there. Anyway, let's go get ourselves some snacks and watch something good on TV, shall we?" said Warrio.

"Alright, I'll go and get the garlic while you turn on the TV." said VARIO and goes into the kitchen.

"Ok! ... hopefully we'll be finding something decent to watch... wonder if Wario-Ware-Man will be having his escape from the police too? Maybe, maybe not." said Warrio and turns on the TV and starts flipping between channels.

After the third flashback, Wario-Ware-Man sighs with a smile on his face, unable to believe that so much stuff was happening back then compared to now.

"Ah, those were the days... I have to admit that I was being a bit dumb back then, particularly when it came to understanding road signs... VARIO was also a bit different in personality, and the seeds of his scaredy cat self hadn't even been sown... anyway, back to finding the photo album." said Wario-Ware-Man.

After putting the notebook back in the box Wario-Ware-Man starts rummaging some more. Behind a corner he finds a very strange contraption.

"But hey, isn't that the "Rain-to-Garlic-Weather-Manipulator" machine I invented many years ago?? The shape of the machine, along with that blue lever and the big button, suggest to me it is the machine." said Wario-Ware-Man and keeps looking at the thing.

"Can't remember why I named it that way. Maybe it was because I had garlic on mind when I first invented it? Again, it has been so long now..." said Wario-Ware-Man. After staring at the machine for long enough, and fiddling around with the buttons, he starts recalling some more memories.

"I am amazed I managed to construct something like this. I mean look at the detail, the finish, and... and the potential it may have had... ah yes, I now remember... that very day, when the weather got completely out of control..." said Wario-Ware-Man as he recalls his memories of that moment.

In the fourth flashback, Warrio and VARIO are seen lying on their hammocks outside their house when Wario-Ware-Man comes with a big, strange thing covered in a huge white blanket.

"VARIO, what is it that I'm seeing Wario-Ware-Man coming with?" asked Warrio.

"I don't know. But it looks like something very big, which he has put a huge white blanket over." said VARIO.

"Ta-daa!!" said Wario-Ware-Man after showing it to his siblings.

"And what is it you have come up with this time around?" Warrio asked Wario-Ware-Man.

"Hm, this could get quite interesting..." said VARIO.

"Well, I was seeing on TV about a DVD movie, "Cloudy With a Chance of Meatballs", so I took myself a moment of thinking, and bla bla bla..." said Wario-Ware-Man, with the rest of his words becoming an blurry mess.

"By the way readers, that movie also exist in your own world, and this story is based on the core idea of something else raining, but with some small changes here and there." said Warrio.

"Are you talking to the readers again?" VARIO asked him.

"What, am I not allowed to?!" said Warrio.

"Er... well of course it's allowed, it's just... ah never mind, do carry on with it if you feel like it." said VARIO.

"Ah, ok then." said Warrio.

"And then it hit me; "why isn't it raining garlic on our property?!", so when we were lying on our hammocks today, when you guys didn't notice anything, I sneaked to the back of the house and started working on my invention, and now it's finally done!" said Wario-Ware-Man.

"Alright. So, can you show us your masterpiece then?" asked Warrio.

"Of course. I've got nothing to hide. Are you ready?" said Wario-Ware-Man.

"I'm ready!" said Warrio.

"I'm more ready than anything!" said VARIO in anticipation.

"Alright, then I'll remove the blanket." said Wario-Ware-Man and removes the blanket covering the giant thing. Warrio and VARIO are taken aback in surprise over the thing they're seeing in front of them.

"Huh? What is THAT??" said Warrio.

"I haven't seen anything like it before!" said VARIO.

"Taa-DAA!! Behold my latest invention; the "Rain-to-Garlic-Weather-Manipulator"!! With this thing, one can choose whether it should be raining water or garlic!" said Wario-Ware-Man.

"How logical... now we know where the meatball rain in the movie came from; from a weather machine!" said Warrio.

"That is a possibility." said VARIO.

"Is it possible to have it rain things other than water or garlic?" asked Warrio.

"Hah, of course I thought about it too!" said Wario-Ware-Man.

"So you've been thinking over things more thoroughly this time?" said Warrio.

"Yep. No cheating or shortcuts here. Everything's been done full and through, so I'm confident the machine should be free from errors." said Wario-Ware-Man.

"Alright, let's test the thing then... where's all the levers and buttons by the way?" asked Warrio.

"In front of the built-in monitor which shows status, what thing should be raining, and so on. I've made it all very simple; The green arrows lets the user switch between the things programmed into the machine, the blue stick turns on the weather-modifying process, and the red button, in case you don't know, turns the machine off. Pull on the blue stick again to stop changing the weather." explained Wario-Ware-Man.

"Ok, let's get started! ... ok, it's currently set to rain... alright, garlic should it rain. VARIO, pull on the stick!" said Warrio.

VARIO pulls on the stick, and out of the skies comes garlic raining down over the entire area. Over at Wario's house next to Wario-Ware-Man & siblings, Wario is sleeping in his hammock, dreaming of money and garlic. He is then woken up by a garlic or two falling on his head.

"Aow, has it started raining garlic?... " said Wario and looks up to see lots of garlic literally raining down.

"Am I in heaven or what?? It sure looks like it to me, because I can see garlic raining down all around me!! Wahoo!! Come to me my tasty little things!" said Wario and tries to catch all the garlic in his hands.

"Oh, the big master of snoring has finally woken up now!" said Warrio.

"Where did this garlic rain come from, fatsos?" Wario asked them.

"From Wario-Ware-Man's latest invention; the "Rain-to-Garlic-Weather-Manipulator"." said VARIO.

"Aha, and what does it do?" asked Wario.

"It basically manipulates the weather. With it one can make it rain everything from garlic to all sorts of food, as well as other things." said Wario-Ware-Man.

"Can you make it so it rains gold too?" asked Wario.

"Unfortunately not. I didn't think of programming in such a choice." admitted Wario-Ware-Man.

"Aww, how bad..." said Wario.

"The machine is still in its early testing stages, so there will be room for later additions and improvements. Right now we are simply testing the machine." said Wario-Ware-Man.

"So it's still in early testing?" asked Wario.

"Yeah. It might look finished, but right now I'm still not sure if there's anything wrong with it or such... but I suppose we'll find it out later on." said Wario-Ware-Man.

"I see. Good luck with testing the machine!" said Wario.

"Thanks Wario! ... You know, you can be really nice of yourself sometimes." said Wario-Ware-Man.

"Aw, I'm not being mean all the time! Remember that time when we were having a snail-racing competition, and things got sabotaged?" said Wario.

"Yeah. But we did uncover the one responsible for the sabotage in the end." said Wario-Ware-Man.

"We sure did. Sigh, those were times for sure... let's just hope that The Monitor keeps himself out of our place for a good long while." said Wario.

"Wario-Ware-Man, come over and take a look quick! VARIO has eaten so much garlic he has become absolutely round and fat!" Warrio told him.

"Alright, coming!" said Wario-Ware-Man and rushes over to the entrance to their house to help Warrio push VARIO through the front door.

"Oof, hnn. Agh... VARIO, HOW much garlic have you been cramming into that belly of yours?!!" said Wario-Ware-Man.

"Well... BURP! around 50 kilos!" said VARIO.

"Actually, to me it feels like you've been eating a Woodster much fatter than you!!" said Warrio.

"Either way, let's just hope we'll get him inside..." said Wario-Ware-Man and keeps trying to push VARIO in. They both fail to get him in though.

"Naw, it's hopeless!" said Wario-Ware-Man.

"I agree. We just can't get him in, no matter how much we try." said Warrio.

They both rest for a moment before they try again, but just then a "boing" sound is heard.

"Guys, I got in!" said VARIO off-screen.

"What? I better hope he's joking..." said Wario-Ware-Man and goes to check what exactly happened, and it turns out that VARIO has managed to get inside the house by himself.

"Nope, I was wrong. It seems that VARIO actually got in by himself!" said Wario-Ware-Man.

"Hey, check out the front door!" said Warrio and points at the door, now having literally been bent as a result of VARIO pushing himself in.

"Huh? Bwaa ha ha ha haa!!" Wario-Ware-Man bursted out in laughter.

"Yeah I know, the door bended itself when I tried to get in!" said VARIO.

"Never mind that, we will be buying a new door when we have the money for it, right Wario-Ware-Man? Wario-Ware-Man?" said Warrio. But Wario-Ware-Man just keeps on laughing at the door, which looks like it could be lasting for hours.

In a later scene, Wario-Ware-Man and his siblings are now standing on the roof of their house trying to turn off the "Rain-to-Garlic-Weather-Manipulator" machine, with little success.

"What shall we do guys?? I've even tried pressing the red button, but it doesn't seem to be turning off the machine!" said Wario-Ware-Man.

"Well, if you hadn't pulled on the stick so hard it broke off, maybe the button would have worked!" said Warrio.

"Alright, that was a bit stupid of me... but let's just put a stop to this whole thing now, because the entire island can't be flooded with garlic forever!" said Wario-Ware-Man.

"Why don't we try and make something else rain down from the clouds?" suggested Warrio.

"Um, no I haven't really thought about that... let's give it a try. But first we need to get the stick fixed." said Wario-Ware-Man.

"But maybe the stick isn't even needed now, since the switch is already in the down-position?" said Warrio.

"Ah of course. The machine is technically already activated, so... suppose we'll have to just use the arrow buttons then." said Wario-Ware-Man and uses the arrow buttons to pick a choice. The first thing to start raining down are stinking fishes, and Wario, who is currently sitting on the roof of his house fishing, seems to already have been having his first dose of fish rain.

"What the... Eew, has it started raining fish now??" said Wario as he keeps trying to evade the fish coming down on him. Over to Wario-Ware-Man & siblings house, they are equally affected by the fish rain.

"Eew, fish!?" said Warrio in disgust.

"Yeah yeah, how should I have known! ... ok, let's try something else." said Wario-Ware-Man and uses the arrows to pick a different choice. Back to Wario, the fish rain has just stopped, but he soon finds himself being covered in butter raining from the clouds.

"Yuck! Now it's raining butter too!" said Wario. Wario-Ware-Man and siblings meanwhile are also affected by this change of weather.

"Aha, and now we're suddenly bathing in butter!!" said VARIO.

"You know, my cholesterol levels are more than enough as it is, please!" said Warrio.

"I'll be making adjustments to the machine later on. That is, once I manage to turn the thing off!" said Wario-Ware-Man and picks another choice.

"Phew, that sure was a bit... well, too fatty for my liking..." said Wario on his side. He then feels something hot on his behind.

"What... YEEEOOWW!! Am I gonna be fried now?!!" said Wario as he runs around on his roof.

"Wha?? Now it's raining lava!! Take cover... wherever there is to take cover!!" said Warrio.

"My garlic, that thing is pretty DANGEROUS!" said VARIO.

"Don't worry, I'm trying to fix the weather!!... how about something more cooling?" said Wario-Ware-Man and presses the arrows again.

"Well, one doesn't die from a little bit of lava... apart from getting burnt black." said Wario. He then gets immediately frozen in his place.

"M-my g-g-garlic... I-I-I take back w-what I just said... T-this is a-a-arguably WORSE!!" said Wario while standing frozen, clapping his teeth.

"O-ok... n-n-now we're below m-m-minus!!" said Warrio.

"I-I'm on m-m-my way!!" said Wario-Ware-Man and presses on the arrows, and in an instant the ice starts melting away. Not only that, but it seems like it has stopped raining stuff other than water by now.

"Phew, the ice is starting to melt now!" said Warrio in relief.

"Alright. Now I shall finally turn this thing off!" said Wario-Ware-Man and presses the arrow buttons.

The last thing to happen are hundreds of seagulls appearing out from the clouds, dropping their feces on both Wario-Ware-Man & siblings, and Wario.

"What the... seagulls?!! Alright, you want war, then I'll give you war!!" Wario started to threaten the seagulls, and in response they start following him around his roof, trying to defecate on him.

"Oh no, oh no!! Get away from here! Go and pester someone else! Shoo, shoo!!" said Wario while trying to avoid being splattered by the seagulls.

"Ok, now hundreds, if not thousands, of seagulls appear out of nowhere, trying to defecate on everything they see!!" said VARIO.

"This is only getting more and more weird!!" said Warrio.

"I am trying to turn the thing off, guys!!" said Wario-Ware-Man and does his best to turn the machine off. No matter what he does though, the machine still won't stop.

"Nope. I've tried everything that's programmed into the machine, and STILL it won't turn off! I'm out of options by now." said Wario-Ware-Man.

"So, what are we gonna do?? If we can't turn off the machine by using what is already programmed, then exactly WHAT can stop it?!" said Warrio.

"Well there's only one thing for it, and that is... to smash on the controls!!" said VARIO.

"What? Are you crazy!? I don't think that's going to work!!" Warrio told him.

"I know, but what else can we do?? Nothing we've tried so far has turned off the machine, so... maybe we ought to give it a try. At least I will, just to get the thing to STOP!" said VARIO.

"Well... alright, go ahead. But don't say we didn't warn you!" said Warrio.

With everything else having failed to stop the Rain-to-Garlic-Weather-Manipulator, VARIO resorts to smash his fist on the controls in a last attempt to turn it off. The strategy seems to work, and the machine finally turns off, but not without VARIO getting himself an electrical shock from the machine and collapsing on the roof.

"Ok, so smashing on the controls DID work! The machine's finally turned off!!" said Wario-Ware-Man.

"It sure indeed!! VARIO, you're a real hero! You saved the world from weather disaster!!... VARIO?... VARIO??" said Warrio and looks over to where VARIO is, now lying down unconscious as a result of the electrical shock he endured from smashing on the controls.

After his fourth flashback, Wario-Ware-Man is both in awe and wonder over the events that happened on that very day.

"That machine of mine sure was a real beast when it came to modifying the weather. In fact, I had no idea it would be so powerful! I still can't believe that smashing on the controls was enough to turn the thing off, but it did. Although VARIO did get a electrical shock from the machine by doing that, he still survived none the less." said Wario-Ware-Man. He keeps looks at the machine for a moment.

"Hm, suppose it might be time to revive the "Rain-to-Garlic-Weather-Manipulator" someday... on the other hand, from my memories of the fourth flashback, and the fact I haven't touched the thing for years. I don't think I wanna mess with it again in a long while, at least until I can figure out a better design and method for modifying the weather." said Wario-Ware-Man and tucks the machine back into the corner again.

He then takes another box and roots inside it, and finds some stone fragments in it.

"A couple stone fragments? I can no longer make any sense of the writing though... but what are these things even about??" said Wario-Ware-Man and keeps twisting his mustache in wonder.

"Ah yes, I'm now reminded of a particular moment me and my siblings went through in one of our very first TV adventures!" said Wario-Ware-Man and reminisces of yet another adventure.

In flashback number five, Wario-Ware-Man, Warrio, and VARIO are standing at the Wishstone in the Allergia Gardens, and are about to put the stone back together.

"Look guys, there it is. The Wishstone!" said Wario-Ware-Man.

"And completely unguarded as well!" said Warrio.

"Alright, let's put the thing back together and make our wish!" said Wario-Ware-Man and is about to start putting the Wishstone back together, only for Wario to come in and interrupt them.

"But that's what you won't be doing!" said Wario.

"You again? So you changed your mind and also want to make a wish?" wondered Wario-Ware-Man.

"No. I'm warnin' you guys; don't go ANYWHERE NEAR THAT THING!" Wario warned them.

"Aw come on, what else could possibly happen?" Wario-Ware-Man ignored Wario's warning and proceeds with putting the pieces of the Wishstone back together. Before he can even put in the last piece Wario leaps at him.

"NOO, don't do it!!" said Wario while leaping towards Wario-Ware-Man.

"Wario, look what you've done now! You made me just drop the piece!" said Wario-Ware-Man.

"Don't worry, I've already got it!" said Warrio, having just caught the Wishstone piece. With the last fragment in his hand, Warrio finishes assembling the Wishstone despite Wario's warnings. With the Wishtone now whole again, Wario-Ware-Man and siblings can only think of one thing; to have their wish granted.

"Alright Wishstone, listen up! Give us a HUGE pot of coins and treasure, now! Immediately!" VARIO made his wish. Nothing seems to happen though.

"What the... nothing is happening?!!" said VARIO in confusion.

"It's not granting our wish?? Hm, I'm suspecting something odd going on here... Wario, you wanted to tell us about something a moment earlier. What was it?" Wario-Ware-Man asked him.

"Well, about the "Wishstone"... it's NOT what you think it is!" said Wario.

"What??" said Wario-Ware-Man.

"Yeah. I know more about this than you guys do... You see, in Wario: Master of Disguise, I was led into thinking the exact same thing; that the Wishstone was a stone that could grant ANY wish in the world. It later turned out to be a stone that served as the prison of a female, evil demon... which I suppose you may have encountered earlier?" said Wario.

"Um... nope, we haven't... yet." said Wario-Ware-Man.

"I thought so... anyway, that's why I were trying to stop you from putting the whole thing together again. But now it is too late... if you hadn't done that, we could have avoided this entire mess and just head back home..." said Wario.

"So the Wishtone isn't a stone of wishes after all... Warrio, VARIO. Wario is speaking the truth here! This isn't a stone of wishes! We better try and disassemble that thing as fast as possible and get out of here!" Wario-Ware-Man urged his siblings.

Before they can do anything the stone emits a white, blinding light which throws Wario-Ware-Man and the others against a nearby wall. Carpaccio then comes in only to see the terror unfolding before his very eyes.

"Oh no, Wario-Ware-Man and his siblings must have assembled the Wishstone before I could even get here in time! And just look at the terror that's being unleashed upon our world!!" said Carpaccio.

As Carpaccio just pointed out to himself, before their very eyes the terror that's been sealed inside the Wishstone is now being released; out of the Wishstone comes the evil, female, and human-looking demon that Wario hinted at moments ago.

"Aha, that's WHY Wario was trying to stop us from assembling the Wishstone!" said Wario-Ware-Man.

"Indeed. Even I attempted to stop you guys, but I seem to have failed at it miserably." said Carpaccio.

"Well said Carpaccio!" said Wario.

"Ho ho ho hooo!! I, Terrormisu, are finally free from my eternal prison! After all these five years, I can finally have my revenge on those who beat me last time, and I owe it all entirely to the three of you!" said Terrormisu and points to Wario-Ware-Man and his siblings.

"You mean us??" asked Wario-Ware-Man.

"Yes, YOU! You were the ones who assembled the pieces of the very stone that has kept me sealed for years. I am grateful for you having freed me!" said Terrormisu.

"HOW grateful, if I may ask?" said Warrio.

"So grateful that I might as well make the three of you my servants, ho ho hoo! ... which I won't be doing, because now I shall be deciding your fate!" said Terrormisu.

"Oh, and I certainly wonder what our fate shall be... you're not planning to devour our souls, are you??" asked Wario.

"Oh, certainly not. For I have a much clever thing on my mind this time..." said Terrormisu.

"Alright, so... what are you gonna do with us?" asked Wario-Ware-Man.

"That I'll be thinking about while I do something else with you, which is... mocking you!" said Terrormisu.

"How nice of you." said Wario.

"This is only temporary. I'll be thinking of something good pretty soon." said Terrormisu.

"Well, let's hope that the new idea turns out to be better compared to us getting mocked..." said Warrio.

"Yeah yeah... so, which one to pick first?... maybe you?" said Terrormisu and points at Wario-Ware-Man.

"Me?" asked Wario-Ware-Man.

"That's right... Wario-Ware-Man, you are the ugliest person I've ever seen." said Terrormisu.

"Why, thank you for saying that..." said Wario-Ware-Man, unsurprised.

"Warrio, you're next!" said Terrormisu.

"Me? Why not Carpaccio?" said Warrio.

"Because I picked you, that's why... Warrio, you are a complete food hog!" said Terrormisu.

"Why, thank you!" said Warrio with a smile on his face.

"It wasn't meant as something positive, bonehead." said Terrormisu.

"What?" said Warrio.

"Oh, just shut your mouth now!" said Terrormisu.

"Ok." said Warrio.

"Don't try and play dumber than you already look." said Terrormisu and moves on to her next subject of mockery. Indeed, it seems that Warrio was trying to play dumb, because it made her tire of him rather quickly.

"Phew, it seemed to work... now I don't have to find myself being called who knows what kind of things by that... whatever she is." said Warrio.

"Alright Carpaccio, you are... too Shakespeare-ish!" Terrormisu mocked Carpaccio.

"Hey, that wasn't very nice of you!" Carpaccio told her.

"Ho hoo, I know. I am that bad, ain't I... Alright, VARIO next... YOU, are the biggest scaredy-cat I've ever seen! You're afraid of pretty much everything; Heights, water, airplanes, Easter month, Halloween, and most of all, ghosts! You shall be sent down to the heck of the demons, and suffer for eternity!!" Terrormisu mocked VARIO with all her might. Her strong words seems to have an effect on VARIO, because he immediately starts to cry.

"Sobs That's the most horrible thing anyone's ever said about me!!" said VARIO.

"I know, but so is life. Things can't always be good, especially for someone like you!" said Terrormisu.

"Don't worry VARIO, we'll cheer you up later on, ok." Warrio whispered to VARIO.

"Ok Wario, you're the last one!" said Terrormisu.

"Me? Hah, this is gonna be rather easy..." said Wario.

"Alright, let's see... Wario, you are way too fat!" said Terrormisu.

"Thank you very much." said Wario, seemingly not feeling anything.

"What? Aren't you even reacting?? ... ok, how about... Wario, you have the worst hygiene of anyone else on this planet!" said Terrormisu.

"Thanks, but I already know my hygiene is bad enough, and I don't even care." said Wario.

"Are you trying to be clever?! Alright, this will make him flip out completely... If somebody would come and steal your cap, what would you do?" said Terrormisu.

"Grab him or her by the neck collar, and launch the biggest fist anyone has ever seen, and that fist would be aimed at ESPECIALLY you!" said Wario.

"Aah!! Is there NOTHING that will make you shed a single tear??" said Terrormisu.

"Nope. You can try ALL you want, and I won't even be crying ONE bit!" said Wario.

Terrormisu keeps trying to hurt Wario's feelings, but he keeps throwing all of Terrormisu's insults back at her, and she is almost at the point of giving up.

"Ok, I'm trying one last time now... Wario, you are the most greedy and selfish person on Earth!!" said Terrormisu.

"I sure am. I am both greedy and selfish, and I always stand by those facts!" said Wario.

"Aaagh!! I think I'm giving up now. Absolutely NO insult I throw at that guy makes him break down!" said Terrormisu.

"You're more than welcome..." said Wario.

"Alright, now that you're done mocking us all, have you got anything else on mind?..." wondered Warrio.

"Hah, of course I do. But this won't be just any old thing. I'm more than content that THIS should put some fear into you!, ho ho ho ho..." said Terrormisu.

"Wow, I'm already shaking in fear..." said Wario to himself, being the least impressed.

"Alright, time to put my magic into good use... Ok my sweet little fan, make me big, BIGGER than any other measly little bug on this worthless planet!" said Terrormisu and with just her fan she makes herself big... or rather GIGANTIC. Indeed, she becomes big enough to take on Wario-Ware-Man and the others... or at least big enough to step on a few Woodsters.

"Gulp... I-I think I'm outta here!!" said Carpaccio and runs away, realizing that his chances of taking on Terrormisu at her new size is nil.

"Hey you weakling, come back here!!" Wario shouted at Carpaccio.

"Carpaccio's backing out of it already?? Alright, looks like it will be me and you guys against her!" said Wario-Ware-Man.

"That's right. I'm not one to back off from some giant lady here! With Wario-Ware-Man and his siblings on my side, we will be taking you down in NO time!" Wario told Terrormisu.

"Ho ho, just try it fatso!" said Terrormisu. Before Wario can even do anything Terrormisu steps on him with her shoe.

"Hah, what do you say about that? By the way, I expected the great, big Wario to be more resistant to my power. Have you lost your powers or what?!" said Terrormisu after moving her foot away from the spot where she stepped on Wario. Wario meanwhile appears to have been completely flattened, but very quickly returns back to normal again.

"Ow... well I admit I am no longer in my master thief form, but... my garlic, that shoe of hers sure was stronger than my own brute strength!" said Wario.

"So, what are you gonna do now, m'lord?" Terrormisu started to mock him.

"Well... I haven't got anything else on mind, and the only thing I can do right now is... RUN!!" said Wario and starts running off.

"I think we should run as well!" said Wario-Ware-Man.

"But, should we even run away from that giant lady? I mean, you said we were gonna take her on, didn't you??" wondered Warrio.

"Yes, but we can't take her on directly. We need to beat her in some other way." said Wario-Ware-Man.

"Well yeah, but HOW??" said Warrio.

"That's what I'm not sure of yet. But maybe we'll figure it out soon." said Wario-Ware-Man and starts running off with Warrio.

"Ho ho ho. You think you can just run away from me?? Well no matter. I'm gonna catch you with little effort! " said Terrormisu and lowers her foot on Wario-Ware-Man and Warrio.

VARIO meanwhile, is still feeling rather frightened and hasn't seen the others running away, and is shaken scared stiff when her foot comes down right in front of him.

"AIIIE!!" VARIO shrieks in terror and runs off to find himself a safe corner to hide at, hoping for it all to be just a bad dream.

Terrormisu hasn't seen VARIO though and keeps chasing the other guys. Wario-Ware-Man, Warrio, and Wario attempt to take on Terrormisu in any way possible. No matter what they try though, even by trying to fool her by pointing behind her, they still can't seem to bring her down.

"Naw, it's hopeless! No matter what we try, we still can't defeat her!" said Wario-Ware-Man.

"Indeed, you may be right..." said Wario.

"Where are you bugs?? You can't just run away! I am gonna find you no matter what!~" said Terrormisu.

"Indeed, it looks like she will get the better of us in any moment..." said Warrio.

"Hm, we have tried everything there is to possibly try, and we just can't seem to bring that petty demon down on her knees... on the other hand, one thing we haven't tried, is... garlic! Yes, that's it!!" said Wario and pulls out a big bowl full of stinking garlic, and mows it all down his throat.

"Just what is Wario doing??" said Warrio in confusion.

"He seems to be having something on mind with mowing all that garlic down his hatch. What it is though, I don't know..." said Wario-Ware-Man, feeling equally confused.

After having eaten all the garlic in the bowl, a extremely rotten stench emerges from his mouth. Wario closes his mouth and pulls up a sign saying "Stand back guys, because it's going to stink rather badly once I open my mouth!". Wario-Ware-Man and Warrio does as told and backs away a safe distance. Wario goes towards Terrormisu and kicks on her shoe to get her attention.

"Aha, there you are, m'lord! You're thinking of giving up already, since you willingly came to me?" Terrormisu asked him.

Wario just shakes his head and prepares his move. He then lets out the loudest belch any fatso has ever witnessed or heard. The sound coming from Wario makes Terrormisu's specular glasses break.

"Oh no, my glasses!!" said Terrormisu.

"Ha, you didn't expect me to do THAT, huh!" said Wario.

"I certainly didn't... you really got the better of me there!" said Terrormisu.

"So, is it I who is gonna be standing victorious against you?" said Wario.

"Certainly NOT!! Even if my glasses are completely broken, I can still get my foot down on you little bugs!!" said Terrormisu.

"Heh heh, you could always try..." said Wario.

Terrormisu tries to step on Wario-Ware-Man and the others, but since she can no longer see anything she blindly wanders around to arena, and keeps crashing into things and hurting herself until she falls down on the ground, after which she's showing no signs of moving. The scene then fades back to Wario-Ware-Man in the attic, still holding one of the tablets in his hand.

"Wow, I just can't BELIEVE that me and my siblings were even doing all these TV-adventuring journeys back then. I had almost forgotten all about it until now. Even though we eventually came to meet Tiaramisu again, that was YEARS after the fact, and by that point she had turned around for the better, now being goodhearted instead..." said Wario-Ware-Man.

Having reminisced enough over the last flashback, Wario-Ware-Man keeps rooting in the box some more. The next thing he finds is an empty bottle of mineral-water, with garlic flavor.

"Hm, an empty water bottle, with garlic flavor?? ... ah yes, that thing!" said Wario-Ware-Man and starts remembering about yet another event.

In the sixth flashback, Wario-Ware-Man is seeing making his way around in a gigantic freezer storage room in the groceries mall Konsum. After walking around for a bit he sees a gigantic, empty can of sweet corns in front of him.

"Huh, a gigantic can of sweet corn?? And I can even hear some sort of music in there! Hm... wonder if I should take a little peek." said Wario-Ware-Man and thinks about entering the big can. Before he can get anywhere near it a strange disco-looking fellow comes out of it.

"Huh, Frankie the Weasel??" said Wario-Ware-Man after recognizing the guy.

"Well hello there dude. What brings you around here?" asked Frankie.

"Well I don't know, but... what are YOU doing here in Konsum, in a gigantic can of sweet corn?!" asked Wario-Ware-Man out of wonder.

"I got confiscated by a gang of Sweet Corn a day or two earlier. They had no intentions of doin' me any bad though, they simply wanted me to teach them all there is about Disco in general, and they saw me as the right guy!" said Frankie.

"Oh, how nice!" said Wario-Ware-Man.

"Anyway, what do you say about following me inside?" asked Frankie.

"Um, I'm not quite..." Wario-Ware-Man was about to decline his offer.

"Aw, of course you want to. Come on in and see my new HQs!" said Frankie and leads Wario-Ware-Man into his place inside the sweet corn can, with the door closing once they've gone inside.

Meanwhile, Warrio and VARIO are standing with all the wares they need to start paying for soon, waiting for Wario-Ware-Man to come back.

"Warrio, I just read about something pretty strange in the Fatso-News magazine here!" said VARIO.

"What??" asked Warrio.

"According to a reporter, The Monitor plans to break into the town's local bank tonight! One has got to wonder though, if he will even succeed with it." said VARIO.

"Phah, I highly doubt he will. He is one of the most stupid, dumbest, parasitic computer screens ever living on this planet. He has also got such low intelligence, relatively small RAM memory, along with the most out-of-date specs, so the possibility of him being able to even rob a bank, is zero." said Warrio.

"Well, I suppose you're right there..." said VARIO.

"Is there anything more sensible to read in that magazine??" asked Warrio.

"I'm already flipping through the pages here." said VARIO and keeps flicking through the magazine.

Back to Wario-Ware-Man, he is now inside the empty sweet corn can just watching Frankie pull off stunt after stunt on the dance floor, with all the Sweet Corns cheering on him. It is starting to get a bit late though, so Wario-Ware-Man is considering trying to find a way out of the freezer room.

"You know Frankie. Things didn't turn out quite so bad after all!" said Wario-Ware-Man.

"Yo, you said it there dude. I sure am the master of all things Disco, and dancing Disco is my biggest passion!" said Frankie.

"Just one question though. What made you start dancing Disco in the first place?" asked Wario-Ware-Man.

"I simply got tired of robbing banks all night, so I decided to pursue a career as a Disco dancer, and I don't regret a single bit of it." said Frankie.

"What about your other buddies then? What did they think of your decision to just leaving the idea of robbing banks behind you?" wondered Wario-Ware-Man.

"Maybe they felt a bit astonished, but I didn't care. I just wanted to get away from the same old thing, and I did what I felt I needed to do. My former boss, the Don, has expressed proudness over my new career in recent times, and with good reason; the money I make from all my dancing around the world always goes to not only weasels in need, but even others around the world." said Frankie.

"Wow, that's very good to hear!" said Wario-Ware-Man.

"It sure is! I'm doing what I can with my disco tours around the world to help raising money for others who might be less fortunate." said Frankie.

"Well, it sure is good and all, but I'm afraid I have to go now because... it's starting to get pretty late, and I've got wares to pay as well." said Wario-Ware-Man.

"Aw, bummer to see you leave so soon. But I understand. Here, have this bottle of mineral-water with garlic flavor. I found it somewhere inside the mall. At first I thought about trying it, but I put it aside in case somebody else would've wanted it." said Frankie.

"Alright, thanks!" said Wario-Ware-Man and takes his leave.

"May the Disco dude forever be within you!" Frankie told Wario-Ware-Man.

"Well, thanks." said Wario-Ware-Man, seemingly not minding Frankie's remark very much. Wario-Ware-Man then heads out of the sweet corn can, closing the door on his way out.

After his sixth flashback, Wario-Ware-Man just sighs a bit and puts the empty bottle away. Not seeing anything else of interest in the box Wario-Ware-Man puts it away and keeps looking for the photo album.

"Where is the thing?? I've been finding pretty much everything else in this attic, and yet there's not a single album in sight." said Wario-Ware-Man and keeps looking among the boxes and such. He then comes across a bunch of flower pots.

"Flower pots? Hm... ah, of course! That time when us and Maya the Bee were taking part in that flower-planting competition!" said Wario-Ware-Man and reminisces himself over yet another memory.

In his seventh flashback, Wario-Ware-Man, siblings, and Maya the Bee are taking part in the flower-planting competition. Maya has got all the good seed bags while the others only have a bag full of tooth seeds, which is to noone's liking.

"Hm, where to begin... I know you first put a seed or two in this flower pot, but the only thing we've got is a bag of tooth seeds..." said Wario-Ware-Man.

"Yeah. What are they even for? Chewing garlic with??" asked Warrio.

"I don't know either, so don't look at me." said VARIO while looking at Warrio.

"Perhaps not, but... I'll ask the judge... Juudge!!" Wario-Ware-Man called out.

"Yes, what is it?" said the judge, who is a Dumb-Crow.

"Maya over there has got lots of bags with various seeds, while we only got a small bag with tooth seeds. Do you have any idea what use one might have for tooth plants??" Wario-Ware-Man asked.

"Sorry, I don't really know. It isn't me who is doling out the seed bags, my assistant does that." said the judge.

"And let me take a guess; he's a Woodster, am I right?" Wario-Ware-Man guessed.

"No, he is a Dumb-Crow just like me." said the judge.

"Oh, sorry then. I didn't know." said Wario-Ware-Man.

"No need to worry." said the judge.

"Anyway, do you think we can get some other seed bags? You know, the kind of seeds one actually has any USE for." said Wario-Ware-Man.

"We haven't got any more right now. We ran out of seed bags after we doled out the remaining ones. I'm afraid you have to make do with what you've got." said the judge.

"Alright, thanks anyway! ... hm, what else can we use for planting instead? I for sure don't want a bunch of flowers looking like rotten, yellow teeth standing by my window at home, and nobody else for that matter." said Wario-Ware-Man.

"You can borrow one of my seed bags if you'd like." said Maya.

"Well, I know you just want to help us a little, but..." said Wario-Ware-Man.

"No, really. If you're going to plant flowers, you really do need some seeds to plant with, right?" said Maya. Wario-Ware-Man starts reconsidering and decides to accept her offer.

"Alright, I think we do need some seed bags. How much do you want for it?" asked Wario-Ware-Man.

"A jar of honey would be enough. But make it a BIG one." said Maya.

"Alright... Warrio, head down to the shops in town and buy a jar of honey for Maya here, will you?" said Wario-Ware-Man.

"Alright." said Warrio.

"She also wants a big jar. Just though I'd tell you before you run off." said Wario-Ware-Man.

"She sure can be a bit greedy at times... not money mind you, but when it comes to honey." said Warrio.

"I like to stock up on honey at home, you know. I am a bee after all." said Maya.

"Ok, off I go then!" said Warrio and runs off to the shops in town to get some honey for Maya.

"And here's the seed bags." said Maya and gives Wario-Ware-Man five of her seed bags.

"Oh, thank you! Right, soon it is time for us to start planting stuff." said Wario-Ware-Man and puts the seed bags on their table. He then looks over to VARIO who is trying to plant something.

"VARIO, what are you doing over there??" Wario-Ware-Man asked him.

"I'm trying to plant a garlic tree, but my attempt at planting one doesn't seem to be going so well." said VARIO and shows him his flower pot with a whole garlic planted into it.

"Yes, but you're doing it all wrong. Just simply putting a whole garlic in the pot and pouring a lot of water over it isn't gonna make it grow. It just doesn't work like that!" said Wario-Ware-Man.

"It doesn't??" asked VARIO.

"That's right. Let's see what Maya thinks of your little attempt... Maya!!" Wario-Ware-Man shouted.

"Yes Wario-Ware-Man, what is it?" Maya asked.

"You wanna see something quite awful that VARIO's been trying to plant here?" said Wario-Ware-Man.

"Ok." said Maya.

"Alright VARIO, come here and show your work for Maya." said Wario-Ware-Man.

"Alright." said VARIO and shows his flower pot to Maya.

"Ok, let's see it..." said Maya and looks in VARIO flower pot. She starts to giggle a little upon seeing his miserable attempt.

"What? What is it that is so funny??" wondered VARIO. Maya keeps giggling, but ends up bursting out in laughter.

"Aa ha ha ha haa!" Maya keeps laughing over the sight.

"Alright, what is it that is so wrong about my little garlic tree?" VARIO asked. Maya calms down a little.

"He heh... N-nothing, nothing. But if you're going to plant such a tree, then you must know that you use seeds for that purpose, not a little garlic. giggles" said Maya.

"Er... no, the judge didn't tell me anything about it." said VARIO. Wario-Ware-Man just smacks his forehead in disbelief upon hearing VARIO's response.

In a much later scene, Wario-Ware-Man & siblings, and Maya are all exhausted after all the planting and watering of their flowers.

"Phew, I'm completely exhausted..." said Wario-Ware-Man.

"Me too..." said Warrio and takes some of the flowers he and his brothers have made and eats on them.

"pant I'm feeling so tired... but I am none the less happy with the work I've done." said Maya.

The judge then comes to inspect the contestants' efforts in planting the biggest and best flowers.

"Duuh-right, testers. The time has come, to see which side have made the most flowers! Remember, only one side can win first prize. Ok then, let's see which of you have made the most effort, starting with; Woodster!" said the judge and checks on the Woodster. Compared to the others he doesn't seem to have grown a single flower, and is sitting down eating all the seeds from his bags. The judge is not impressed.

"What a sight. You haven't made ANY effort to grow a single flower. One can only wonder if you even listened to my explanation of the competition at all..." said the judge.

"Duuh...BURP" was all the Woodster said while letting out a belch.

"Sigh. And one wonders why some people keeps saying that you logs don't have any mind... Alright, Wario-Ware-Man and his siblings next." said the judge and moves on to them.

"Ok guys, the judge is coming now!" said Wario-Ware-Man.

"There seems to have been a lot going on here, I see!" said the judge while taking note of all the flowers.

"Exactly. We've been away at planting flowers since the start of the competition. At least we're proud of our efforts!" said Wario-Ware-Man.

"Ok then, let's see..." said the judge and starts inspecting their flowers.

"Very impressive I must say! The one thing that really caught my attention was your mega-giant flower in the middle of the smaller ones!" said the judge, with Wario-Ware-Man and siblings just smiling in pride after hearing the judge's comment.

"Alright, time for the little bee Maya now!" said the judge and moves on to Maya.

"So, what does the judge think of my garden here?" asked Maya.

"Fairly impressive! I must say that I like your garden even more than the other guys!" said the judge.

"Hmpf!!" said Wario-Ware-Man & siblings while frowning.

"Now now, no need to frown. We haven't yet decided on the winner of the competition." said the judge.

After having checked the contesters' efforts, the judge then comes to a decision over which side will be the winner.

"Alright, now it is time for me decide who will be the winner of the competition! ... I'm ruling out the Woodster because he didn't do what he was supposed to do, so I'll be starting with Wario-Ware-Man and siblings." said the judge.

"So, what does the judge think? Which of us will be winning the competition?" said Wario-Ware-Man.

"Well... if I'm being honest, you guys have done an incredible job. Your side is literally blooming with flowers!" said the judge.

"Ok, so? Then what about Maya?" asked Wario-Ware-Man.

"On the other hand, I also see Maya's side which is basically filled with flowers everywhere! She has even managed to grow an even bigger flower than you!" said the judge as he points as Maya's flower, which is even bigger than their mega-giant flower.

"What?? Does that mean?..." said Wario-Ware-Man.

"That's right. Maya is the clear winner this year! She's taking first place!!" said the judge. Wario-Ware-Man and siblings just drop their jaws after seeing her flower, and can only watch as Maya is given first prize, holding a golden trophy filled with coins and dollar bills, and jars with honey.

"sobs all the money we worked so hard to get, goes to a little bee who in one way or another grew a bigger flower than us!..." said Wario-Ware-Man as non-happy tears keep flowing down his face.

"But Wario-Ware-Man, look on the bright side; At least we won second prize! We also got $350 to go along with the silver trophy, so it can't be THAT bad!" said Warrio.

"Hm... well, you are probably right. A little silver trophy is nothing to cry over. We also won a free Wario-Bike, which is also one of the newer sorts!" said Wario-Ware-Man, and after getting on his new Wario-Bike, with Warrio and VARIO sitting on his old one, they start driving home along with Maya.

The Woodster meanwhile, goes home with absolutely nothing except a big shoe in his mouth that he found somewhere. He decides to try and eat it, only for it to become stuck in his teeth. After this flashback, Wario-Ware-Man just sighs with a smile over their early adventures with their friend Maya.

"Sigh. Those sure were early days with Maya the Bee. Compared to then she is much more mature by now. Also, VARIO was being quite dumb that day. While Warrio were arguably more stupid than him, VARIO were still somewhere on Warrio's level of stupidity sometimes... anyway, back to finding the album." said Wario-Ware-Man and puts the flower pots in their corner and starts rummaging some more in the attic. Just then Warrio comes in.

"Wario-Ware-Man, where is the bag with garlic seeds? The parrot is getting cranky again." said Warrio.

"It is in the pantry next to the garlic and bread." said Wario-Ware-Man.

"Alright." said Warrio and is about to close the door.

"Warrio, don't just slam on the door before heading out of the attic this time. We're living in a apartment complex now." Wario-Ware-Man told him. Warrio does as told and closes the door gently and silently as he can while heading out.

Wario-Ware-Man resumes looking through the attic for the photo album. In one of the boxes he finds an smaller box. He opens it to find three golden coins inside it.

"Three gold coins? What are they, along with this smaller box even doing in here?..." said Wario-Ware-Man and keeps thinking over it. It doesn't take long for him to remember about yet another event.

"Oh yeah. That time when the three of us and Maya were out investigating an old temple..." said Wario-Ware-Man as he starts recalling his memories of that day.

In his eighth flashback, Wario-Ware-Man and his siblings are out cruising on their Wario-Bikes along with Maya the Bee. Their trip started as a result of Maya coming over to their house telling them about a hidden treasure inside some ancient temple.

"Sure is gonna be a very exciting day today, right boys?" Wario-Ware-Man asked his siblings.

"I agree!" said VARIO.

"Well, things would've been better if it didn't keep raining all the time..." said Warrio.

"Yeah yeah. Nothing we can do about I'm afraid." said Wario-Ware-Man. After driving on the road for a while they then stop by a sign.

"Hm, the sign shows two directions... which way should we take?" said Wario-Ware-Man.

"How about we turn to the left?" suggested Maya.

"Hm... Even I'm not sure which way we should go. Let's follow Maya's suggestion." said Warrio.

"Alright, to the left it is." said Wario-Ware-Man and turns to the left with the others at Maya's suggestion.

A moment later Wario-Ware-Man and the others have stopped in the middle of a green field where the temple is said to be.

"Oaah... Smell the fresh air boys... in the rain, I know." said Wario-Ware-Man.

"Whatever, our main goal right now is to find that temple and rob it of its riches." said Warrio.

"I hope so as well! Said Maya and gets off her bike and heads over to where Wario-Ware-Man and siblings are standing.

"Hm. I have to admit things sure looks quite beautiful around here..." said Maya.

"Naaw, we don't have the time for admiring the nature now, do we?" asked Warrio.

"It depends... What do you guys think?" asked VARIO.

"Well... Like Warrio said, we don't have the time to admire stuff around here, so I think we'd better head off to find that temple... wherever it could be." said Wario-Ware-Man. He then takes a look behind him and sees that Warrio's not there.

"Um... Weren't Warrio just behind me earlier?" wondered Wario-Ware-Man.

"Take a second guess..." said VARIO and points towards a little spot on the grassy field where Warrio is wandering around trying to take photos of a Wario-Nose.

"Oh great... and didn't Warrio just say we absolutely had no time to waste on admiring the nature??" said Wario-Ware-Man.

"Erm... Maya, you... you're not going to take it off now?? I mean, it's still raining!" said VARIO, having just noticed Maya about to take off her rain coat.

"Well... I'm just feeling a bit hot, that's all." said Maya.

"But, the sun's not even shining?!" said VARIO and looks up at the sky to see the rain has just stopped, with the sun peeking out from the clouds.

"Oh, so the rain's already stopped??... Alright, never mind it then." said VARIO and takes off his rain coat.

"Hm, maybe I should be taking mine off as well." said Wario-Ware-Man and looks to his right side where the others are while taking off his rain coat.

"Huh?... Sorry for asking Maya, but WHEN did you start wearing a skirt??" asked Wario-Ware-Man.

"A couple days ago. Do you have any problem with that?" asked Maya.

"Naw. It just surprised me a little. I wasn't really expecting to see you in a skirt." said Wario-Ware-Man.

"Oh, ok. Anyway, I think it suits me quite well, especially with the blue color." said Maya and starts twirling around on her spot with her left leg and her arms stretched out.

"Well. I have to admit though that the color on your skirt almost resembles the dress of Minnie Mouse!" said Wario-Ware-Man.

"Hunh?" said Maya and looks down on her skirt.

"Hm, I think you're right there Wario-Ware-Man." said Maya.

"But, it surely is just a coincidence, isn't it?" wondered Wario-Ware-Man.

"Perhaps. What Minnie's opinion would be though... we'll likely find it out when we do meet her someday." said Maya.

"That is to say, if we would ever get the chance to meet her." said Wario-Ware-Man and sees Warrio returning again, covered and drenched in wet, green snot.

"Hah, so the Wario-Nose-Photographic-Expert returns. Did you snap any decent photos of the Wario-Nose?" Wario-Ware-Man asked him.

"Pretty much nothing that I'm proud over... When I attempted to take a photo of the Wario-Nose it just turned its back on me. As if that wasn't enough, for some reason it just HAD to sneeze on me right in the face, and look at me now!" said Warrio.

"Yep, you look absolutely disgusting with all that gunk over your body. If it hadn't stopped raining now, you could've had a nice shower..." said Wario-Ware-Man and looks around, and spots a nearby river.

"On the other hand, there's a little river down there. Why not go down there and wash yourself clean?" suggested Wario-Ware-Man.

"Hrm... Ah well, it's not like I have any choice..." said Warrio and goes down to the river to wash himself.

In a later scene, Wario-Ware-Man and the others have grabbed all the money they can possibly carry, and are now heading out of the temple they've been exploring for quite some time.

"This day has been a rather good one. Not only have we been out on a little adventure, we've also managed to snag some riches! We won't be going home broke today, that I'm sure of." said Wario-Ware-Man.

Unfortunately for them, a rumbling sound is heard, and judging by the debris falling from the roof, it seems the insides of the temple are about to collapse.

"Uh-oh... guys, I think we better hurry out of here. The floor behind us is falling apart!!" said Maya.

"My garlic, Maya's right! Guys, time to get out of here, quick!!" said Wario-Ware-Man.

"Oh, just typical!" said Warrio.

"Hopefully I'll manage to bring the tub of money with me intact!!" said VARIO.

They start rushing towards the exit as fast as they can. All the money keeps falling out of Warrio's pockets though, making VARIO trip on the other guys in front of him, breaking the tub with VARIO's loot. They try to get out despite slipping on all the coins and such scattered around.

"Ok, things sure quite slippery for us in here!!" said Wario-Ware-Man. While also trying to get himself out of the temple, Warrio falls down on VARIO and Maya.

"Oof, sorry 'bout that..." Warrio apologized.

"Warrio, get your fat behind off of me!!" VARIO told him.

"Kinda... agree with VARIO there! You... better get back up on your feet now, or..." said Maya.

"NOOO!! MY riches!!" Warrio screamed after seeing the floor behind them collapsing even more, with all the riches falling down the pit. Warrio is about to go and retrieve his lot, but is grabbed by VARIO and Maya.

"No Warrio!! If you stay here trying to pick up all the coins you will be falling down! We have to get out of here now!!" said Maya and runs off with VARIO, both dragging him with them.

"B-but... what about all the money!? I mean, the temple is literally stealing our riches!!" said Warrio.

"And do YOU even realize, that all those coins and diamonds, including you and us, will just be a memory if we were to get it all back?? The moment you fall down there, you will no longer exist!!" said VARIO. Warrio starts to think a little after hearing their words.

"Maybe you're right... My life is probably far more important than a bunch of coins..." said Warrio.

They rush to the exit as fast as they possibly can. A few minutes later they finally start to see some daylight in front of them.

"Hah, at last!! Just a few more steps now, and we'll be out of here!!" said Wario-Ware-Man.

Wario-Ware-Man and the others finally reach the exit, and makes it out of the temple just in time. Unfortunately they lost the riches on their way out. On their way back to their bikes they all talk about their time inside the temple.

"So you were just standing there thinking to yourself while the rest of us just moved on without you? Sorry about that, but why didn't you tell us to wait?" Wario-Ware-Man told Warrio.

"I know... Anyway, I sure I had my own little adventure in there. Only bad thing to happen was me having to stumble upon that stupid Monitor fellow." said Warrio.

"I agree. He can be a bit of a bother at times." said VARIO.

"Let's just hope that he'll be forever trapped inside that temple from now on, heh heh..." said Warrio.

"My thoughts exactly. Even so, one can't be completely sure of it. Maybe he'll find his way out someday... in a couple years time or more." said Wario-Ware-Man.

"Shame we lost all the money though. We were soo close to getting out of the temple in triumph with lots of treasure in our hands!" said Warrio.

"We sure were. But unexpected things tend to happen. At least we should be glad that we're still alive though!" said Wario-Ware-Man.

"Well said there Wario-Ware-Man." said VARIO.

Later, Wario-Ware-Man and the others are now back at the spot where they parked their bikes earlier, all ready to head back home.

"Alright guys. It has been a great adventure today, but now it is time for us to head back home." said Wario-Ware-Man.

"Maya, what is it you're wearing on yourself now?" VARIO asked her.

Oh, this is the stuff I managed to snag from the temple. Said Maya and shows the other guys the accessories she's put on herself.

"Alright, let's see..." said Wario-Ware-Man and takes a look at Maya's collection, and is stunned over the sight.

"You... you were carrying those things in your pockets on our way out of the temple all the time?!" said Wario-Ware-Man.

"So these are the following things; a pearl necklace, a pair of silver lady shoes, a diamond ring, and a tiara? Do you plan on sharing these treasures with us maybe?" said Warrio.

"Hm... No, I think I'll keep them to myself. Besides, they fit quite perfectly on me. I think I'll be wearing these things on more than a few occasions!" said Maya.

"Hmpf. So all these things are gonna be yours to wear and adore, but nothing for us??" said Warrio.

"It looks like it. For me though it doesn't really matter. We may have lost our fortune, but one thing we have still got are each other, and that's the most important thing, right?" Wario-Ware-Man told his siblings.

"Those are some wise words. Anyway, I have got something for you guys too!" said Maya.

"Really?! Now that's something different. What is it? A diamond? A ruby? A emerald??" said Wario-Ware-Man in wonder.

"None of that I'm afraid. The other thing I decided to take with me are three gold coins, just in case things would go wrong. Said Maya and gives Wario-Ware-Man, Warrio, and VARIO one gold coin each.

"Only three gold coins!?" said Warrio.

"Yep. I suppose it'll have to do though. At least Maya were having us on mind with these coins, so we should be thankful for her for giving them to us!" said Wario-Ware-Man.

"Ah well, you are right there... Three gold coins are better than nothing I suppose." said Warrio.

"Alright guys, let's head back home now." said Wario-Ware-Man.

"I can't wait to have myself a glass of raspberry juice and a bowl of cinnamon buns after we get back home!" said VARIO.

"Sigh... VARIO and his darn glass of juice..." said Warrio after boarding his Wario-Bike.

After a very hectic end during their adventure, they start driving back home again. Wario-Ware-Man & siblings were quite unlucky this time though, having lost all their fortune on the way out. But at least they can console themselves with three gold coins given to them by Maya. The flashback then ends, and Wario-Ware-Man just thinks back on the adventure they had.

"Well, we lost our fortune to that crumbling temple. But to me, the thing that mattered the most in the end, was that me and my siblings still had each other. I'm also thankful for Maya for giving us these gold coins after things had been going so wrong... I'm always gonna treasure these things no matter what." said Wario-Ware-Man and puts the coins back in the little box, and stuffs the box in his pocket.

He keeps looking around for the photo album, and sees three shopping bags in a corner. He looks inside them only to find that they contain mostly small scraps of wares, like broken garlic cloves and such.

"This is a rather odd sight. What are these shopping bags even about?? I'm trying to remember very hard now, but I still can't seem to figure out what memories these bags even represent..." said Wario-Ware-Man and tries to think back. After a moment or so he then remembers yet another event, and it is a less happy one this time around.

"Ah yes... that day when those Biker-Woodsters came and ruined our day!" said Wario-Ware-Man and starts having yet another flashback.

In his ninth flashback, Wario-Ware-Man and siblings, along with Maya the Bee, are out on the road cruising with their motor bikes, after having stopped at a take-away fast food chain for something to eat.

"Buurp! Ah, that was some real food for sure." said Warrio.

"Precisely. I am like all stuffed..." said VARIO.

"Wonder what more things we might stumble upon during our road trip..." said Warrio.

"Good question. Maybe we'll come across some sort of caf  teria, who knows." said Wario-Ware-Man.

So far so good, but their day is about to be ruined soon, because VARIO hears something behind them.

"Um, Warrio. There's some suspicious guys coming right behind us!" said VARIO.

"Oh no, Biker-Woodsters!! Hey guys, we better start speeding now, or we'll be getting ourselves into trouble!" Warrio told the others.

"What, really??" asked Wario-Ware-Man.

"Yes! A gang of Biker-Woodsters are also out on their motor bikes, just to find innocent people to muck with!!" said Warrio.

"Aw noo! And here I was hoping we'd never have to go through this stuff today!" said Wario-Ware-Man.

They start to accelerate, hoping to shake off the Biker-Woodsters from their backs. The Biker-Woodsters seems to be getting closer to them the faster they drive though.

The Biker-Woodsters eventually drives past them in a way that makes Wario-Ware-Man and siblings fall off their bikes, with Maya being the only one to still be on her bike. The Biker-Woodsters then stops by the spot where Wario-Ware-Man & siblings have fallen down on the road.

"Aow... whadd'ya do that for??" said Warrio.

"Just to muck with you guys a little, so what?" said the first Biker-Woodster.

"You better not! We're not remotely interested in driving and fooling around like you do!" said Warrio.

"I've even hurt my behind because of what you did. You will pay for this!" VARIO told them.

"Sure, sure. Keep trying to argue. We're not gonna feel any more sorry for you little fat blobs!" said the second Biker-Woodster.

"And WHO are you calling a fat blob, huh??" said Warrio.

"You fatsos of course, heh heh!" said the third Biker-Woodster.

"Anyway, we're gonna steal your stuff now! Bikers, lets take their little paper bags, head off back to our HQs, and stuff our heads into them and gobble up their contents!" said the first Biker-Woodster.

"Yaaay!!!" said the second and third Biker-Woodsters and starts stealing Wario-Ware-Man and siblings' shopping bags.

Wario-Ware-Man and siblings do whatever they can to take their bags back, but they always suffer beatings from the Biker-Woodsters. Maya sees what is going and really wants to help her friends out, but decides to keep her distance for now. After the Biker-Woodsters have plundered their loot they decide to carry on with their little biking trip.

"Just you wait! We're gonna give you back one thing or another!!" said Wario-Ware-Man.

"Haah-haah. Like that would ever happen!... We're off now. Thanks for letting us take your stuff... come on guys, let's continue our trip on the road with all these goodies in our hands!" said the first Biker-Woodster and drives off along with his other buddies.

"Hey, wait!!... Aw, they're getting away with all the things we bought! Why did our day have to end like this..." said Wario-Ware-Man.

"Don't worry Wario-Ware-Man. We will be catching up to them. In one way or another we're going to get your shopping bags back!" said Maya and helps Wario-Ware-Man back up on his feet.

"You're right Maya. We shouldn't be feeling defeated just yet. We'll catch up with you later Maya! Right now we've gotta get up our bikes again." said Wario-Ware-Man.

"Ok. While you do that I'll be going after those Biker-Woodsters!" said Maya and starts driving after the Biker-Woodsters.

"Ok guys. Get back up on your feet and let's get after those bad Woodsters!" said Wario-Ware-Man.

"Alright, Wario-Ware-Man!" said Warrio.

After getting their bikes back up they start driving after the Biker-Woodsters, and in just a few minutes they're already behind their heels, ready to risk their noses to take back their stuff. Right now the Biker-Woodsters aren't even aware that Wario-Ware-Man and siblings are about to close in on them.

"He he. Those fatsos seems to be lagging behind quite a lot!" said the second Biker-Woodster.

"Yeah. We'll be getting back to our HQs long before they even show up!" said the first Biker-Woodster.

"Oh crap, I think you're both wrong there!" said the third Biker-Woodster after looking at his rear mirror.

"What the... those fatsos sure are being persistent! But we're still gonna make their bikes topple over, that's for sure!" said the first Biker-Woodster.

"Alright you rotten logs! You won't be getting away so easily!!" said Wario-Ware-Man.

"Ha, we shall see about that Biker-Fatso! Alright you two, have you got anything we can use against them?" the first Biker-Woodster told his buddies.

"Depends what exactly it is you're talking about." said the second Biker-Woodster.

"I mean things that can slow those guys down, you loghead!" said the first Biker-Woodster.

"Ah, we've sure got such stuff! This will surely put those guys off-track." said the second Biker-Woodster and pulls up a little box with nails and throws it in the middle of the road behind them.

"Uh-oh, time to move over to the right side siblings. They seem to have thrown a box with nails on the road!" said Wario-Ware-Man and driver over to the right to avoid the nails, with Warrio and VARIO doing the same thing.

"Darn it!! ... alright boys, keep throwing stuff. We won't let them catch us!" said the first Biker-Woodster.

The Biker-Woodsters keep throwing things on the road, and even tries taking different routes just to shake Wario-Ware-Man & siblings off their back. Despite all this they are still being followed by Wario-Ware-Man & siblings.

"This is hopeless!! No matter what we do, those guys are always behind us!" said the first Biker-Woodster.

"Me and our other buddy have just finished munching all the garlic those fatsos bought for themselves. Maybe we can use the remains of it like a banana peel??" the second Biker-Woodster told the first one.

"Are you stupid? A banana peel is the only thing that makes someone trip over. There's NO chance that some garlic remains can do the trick!" said the first Biker-Woodster.

"Maybe not. But it could be worth a try." said the second Biker-Woodster.

"Ok, go ahead. But if it doesn't work, then it's YOUR fault!" said the first Biker-Woodster.

"Naw, I'm sure it will work! ... Alright, I'll be throwing 'em out now!!" said the second Biker-Woodster and throws out the garlic remains on the road.

"Hm. Some idiot has just thrown some garlic remains on the road!" said Warrio.

"Garlic remains... What in the garlic, have they already gobbled up our food!? Ok guys, best to move over to the right again!" said Wario-Ware-Man.

"Aw come on, what kind of harm would a few garlic shells do?" asked Warrio, seemingly not being convinced over the dangers of driving on garlic remains.

"A lot of harm actually! If you don't do as I say now, then..." said Wario-Ware-Man and is about to drive over to the right side. He hasn't noticed that he's just hit the garlic remains and starts spinning around like a dizzy ballerina dancer.

"Waaahh!!" Wario-Ware-Man screamed.

"AARGH!!" said both Warrio and VARIO as they drive into Wario-Ware-Man's bike. It all ends with the three of them crashing their bikes in the middle of the road.

"Ha hah, try catching up with us NOW if you can!!" said the first Biker-Woodster.

"By the way, you can keep this paper bag with all these disgusting cleaning things to yourselves!" said the second Biker-Woodster and throws the shopping bag with the cleaning supplies right at them.

"Aow!!" said Wario-Ware-Man after being hit by the bag.

"Yeah fatso. That's what the little kid gets for trying to take back his candy, he he he!" the second Biker-Woodster mocked them. He then sees somebody else just stopping in front of them.

"What... hey guys, some darn little bee is trying to block our way!!" said the second Biker-Woodster.

"Ahem, my name is Maya the Bee, and you're not going anywhere until you give the shopping bags back! AND I DON'T tolerate your tone against me!" said Maya.

"Quick everybody, let's drive out to the grassy plain to the left!!" said the first Biker-Woodster and drives out to the grass along with the others.

"Oh no, you aren't gonna get away THAT easily!" said Maya and starts driving after the Biker-Woodsters.

"Ah heck, that little bee sure isn't giving up, just like those fatsos we've been dealing with!" said the third Biker-Woodster.

"She won't be getting us in any case! Have we taken on a gang of fatsos, so can we do the same to a little bee sitting on a motor bike!!" said the first Biker-Woodster.

The Biker-Woodsters do everything they can to shake Maya off their backs. But no matter what they do Maya is still behind their heels. However, when they least expect it, it seems that Maya has now vanished from sight, which makes them stop their bikes and think.

"Hm... that bee seems to have disappeared now... have we finally rid ourselves of her??" wondered the second Biker-Woodster.

"I'm having my suspicions... somewhere she's probably waiting for us. Let's have a wander around and see if we spot her anywhere." said the first Biker-Woodster and walks off with his other buddies to find out where Maya is. What they don't know is that Maya has parked her motor bike behind a big sign standing next to their bikes.

"Alright, it seems they have wandered off for now. I'm gonna give my own back for what they did to Wario-Ware-Man and his siblings!" said Maya and walks over to the Biker-Woodsters' bikes and messes with their inner workings.

"Let's see... if I take this cable and put it here, that screw there, and so on, etc etc..." said Maya while sabotaging their bikes. After some messing around she is finally done with it all.

"There. Let's see if you guys can drive around with your bikes now, tee hee..." said Maya and gets up on her motor bike, and starts driving off as fast as she can. After Maya has gone off and no longer being in sight, The Biker-Woodsters return again.

"Phew. We have looked in every corner and rock, and yet we can't see that annoying little bee anywhere." said the second Biker-Woodster.

"Maybe she gave up and gone back home..." said the first Biker-Woodster and sees that the shopping bags that were on their bikes earlier are no longer there.

"What the heck, somebody has stolen our profit!! Come on guys, let's go catch that thief!" said the first Biker-Woodster.

The Biker-Woodsters get on their bikes and are about to start them, only for the engines to explode and their bikes falling apart.

"Hey, what happened to our trusty horses!?" said the second Biker-Woodster.

"Grr. Not only did the thief steal our loot, he also sabotaged our bikes!" said the first Biker-Woodster.

"Just typical." said the third Biker-Woodster.

"Naw... you know, without any bikes to speed around on the road with, things suddenly got very boring. Come on guys, let's go back home!" said the first Biker-Woodster.

"But shouldn't we be finding that thief first??" wondered the third Biker-Woodster.

"That can wait till another day. I kinda lost the joy after what just happened to us." said the first Biker-Woodster.

"Ok, you're the boss. Come Biker-Woodster 2, it's time to head back home!" said the third Biker-Woodster.

The Biker-Woodsters' motor bikes have just broke, and without them they can't have their fun on the roads. With that, the Biker-Woodsters starts walking all the way back from where they came. After his ninth flashback, Wario-Ware-Man feels a bit irritated over the fact the Biker-Woodsters just had to come and ruin the day for him and the others.

"My garlic. Things could've ended so much better for us that day if those Biker-Clowns didn't show up! But at least Maya showed them by giving them a taste of their own medicine. Even though our shopping bags were pretty much trashed when we got them back, Maya offered to do the shopping for us before we headed back home, which was pretty kind of her." said Wario-Ware-Man.

Leaving the old shopping bags where they are, Wario-Ware-Man keeps rooting some more in the boxes. He then finds a cooking pot. After dipping his nose in it he feels a rather strong scent of honey, along with the smell of medicine in it.

"Wow, what a stench!... I wonder what this cooking pot really is about. And what did I even use it for??" said Wario-Ware-Man and keeps staring at the cooking pot for a moment. After thinking about it for some time, Wario-Ware-Man then remembers something else.

"Ooh, I remember now... that time when we had to cure Maya from a very dangerous poison..." said Wario-Ware-Man and starts remembering his tenth, and last major memory.

In his tenth flashback, Wario-Ware-Man and siblings have decided to head down to town, mostly for fun, but also to sample some garlic at a newly opened restaurant.

"Sure is going to be fun going to the town for once, right VARIO?" Warrio asked VARIO.

"Yep. One can only wonder what new things might be happening down there." said VARIO.

"Remember that we're not going to town to start mass-shopping now." Wario-Ware-Man told his siblings.

"Alright, we'll keep it on mind." said VARIO.

"On another note, a new restaurant has just opened at town. Only problem is to try and find it!" said Warrio.

"And it is this restaurant that we will be visiting first. Their garlic is said to be a delicacy according to those who have visited it!" said Wario-Ware-Man.

"Aah, I can barely wait to taste this garlic..." said VARIO as his mouth starts foaming at the mention of garlic.

"He heh, VARIO and garlic..." said Warrio.

"VARIO, watch out for!!..." Wario-Ware-Man was about to tell VARIO, but the latter doesn't see where he's going and ends up bumping into something soft, yet hard.

"Hey, what was it that I..." said VARIO and starts looking up, and gets scared stiff over what he's seeing.

"WAAH!!" said VARIO and jumps a little in fright.

"Come on VARIO, it can't be THAT terrible... whatever this big thing lying in front of us is." said Warrio.

"Hm, it looks very much like Maya, only bigger than usual..." said Wario-Ware-Man.

Indeed, Wario-Ware-Man is correct about the big thing being Maya the Bee. She has been napping in the middle of the road for some time, and after waking up she is a bit startled when she sees Wario-Ware-Man and siblings below her.

"Eek!!" Maya screamed upon seeing them.

"Yeah yeah. It's not like we're cockroaches or something!" said Warrio.

"Calm down Maya, it's just us!" said Wario-Ware-Man. Maya opens her eyes again after rubbing them.

"Oh, it's only you guys. What are you doing here?" said Maya.

"Same thing can we ask you; what are YOU doing around here in the way of everyone, and how have you gotten bigger than everything else?" said Wario-Ware-Man.

"Hm... I probably fell asleep on my way home, or something... hang on, what do you mean with that I'm 'bigger than everything else'?" wondered Maya.

"Um, can't you see it for yourself?? You're just as big as the trees around here!" said Wario-Ware-Man.

"I don't quite understand what you're talking about Wario-Ware-Man." said Maya, feeling a bit confused.

"Maybe we should compare the sizes between you and Warrio." said Wario-Ware-Man and starts measuring the sizes of Maya and Warrio. After having done it Maya realizes she is now a giant.

"You guys are right, I am gigantic!! I thought that things around me started looking smaller on my way home..." said Maya.

"Alright, so the question remains... HOW in the garlic did Maya get this big??" said Warrio.

"Hm... Now that I'm thinking back on it, it all started earlier in the morning; I was going out for a little walk towards some green fields that me, Warrio, and VARIO had been to sometime ago. The first thing I saw when I got there was a Wario-Nose. Not just any, but a blue one." said Maya.

"A blue Wario-Nose?! That's something different, and very rare too!" said Warrio.

"Yeah. Anyway, after I looked at it for some time the Wario-Nose suddenly bit me on the hand and hopped away. I started feeling rather ill just after that, so I thought I'd better get back home as quickly as possible before my condition would get worse. It felt better after a while, but when I had just gotten almost home I felt so tired and fell asleep right on this spot." said Maya.

"Ok, at least now we know that. But it still doesn't explain how you got this big... unless if it was the bite from the Wario-Nose that caused it." said Wario-Ware-Man.

"Mm, you might be right there Wario-Ware-Man." said Maya and suddenly falls on her knees.

"Maya? Are you ok??" asked Wario-Ware-Man.

"Er... I-I think my legs still aren't very stable right now... and I know it's the bite from the Wario-Nose that's caused this." said Maya.

"Hm. I have a feeling it's gonna be tough for you to follow us everywhere in town if this thing keeps up..." said Wario-Ware-Man.

"My thought as well. At least I can still crawl, but even then you get tired after doing it for a while..." said Maya.

"Alright siblings, it looks like we're gonna have to keep an eye on Maya to make sure we don't leave her behind." Wario-Ware-Man told his siblings.

"How typical..." said Warrio.

Wario-Ware-Man and siblings starts heading to the town with Maya crawling behind them. Every now and then she keeps lagging behind due to her current condition, forcing Wario-Ware-Man and siblings to wait for her here and there. The town's residents meanwhile, can do nothing but keep watching Maya as she and the others keeps walking around town.

"Sigh. Why are they just staring at me like that??" Maya wondered.

"Try not to bother. They probably haven't seen a gigantic bee before. Not that we have either, but... anyway, how are you doing right now?" said Wario-Ware-Man.

"A bit tough... don't think I even dare trying to stand on my feet again..." said Maya.

"Well. Why not give it a try?" said Wario-Ware-Man.

"Ok, I'll give it a try then. What could possibly happen?" said Maya and tries to stand up on her legs again. But as soon as she takes a single step Maya feels how her legs keeps wobbling, and falls down on the ground again, right on top of VARIO.

"Sigh. I knew this would happen..." said Maya.

"Er..." said both Wario-Ware-Man and Warrio while pointing under Maya's upper body. Maya looks down and sees that VARIO is now trapped under her chest.

"Oh... giggles hi there VARIO. How are things down there?" Maya asked VARIO.

"Not good at all... I feel like a flattened seagull under your weight..." said VARIO.

"Alright, sorry. Me though... well, I must admit that I'm finding this a bit enjoyable... and I don't mean this in a suggestive way now." said Maya and suddenly feels a strong pain in her head.

"Aoww... starting to feel that dreadful pain in my head again..." said Maya while she's holding her head in pain.

"I'm starting to worry now..." said Wario-Ware-Man.

"About what Wario-Ware-Man?" asked Warrio.

"Well, I'm worried that the more time goes on, the worse Maya starts to feel... how it all is gonna evolve is too early to tell right now, but my worst fear is; since the bite from a blue Wario-Nose is extremely dangerous, there's a very high risk that Maya will probably die from the poison after it has fully kicked in!" said Wario-Ware-Man.

"No?!! You don't really mean it, do you...?" said Warrio.

"I'm afraid that is the case... anyway, we better get our best girl back up again and move on, and also find a cure for her in one way or another." said Wario-Ware-Man.

Wario-Ware-Man and siblings try to get Maya back up again, but it seems to be taking quite a while. After they've dealt with it they carry on walking through town to try and find the new restaurant.

In a much later scene, Wario-Ware-Man is now standing outside an pharmacy with a cooking pot along with a bunch of medicine jars.

"Ok, I have to admit that I know absolutely NOTHING about making medicine. But since there are no cure currently available for Wario-Nose poison we have to figure it all out by trial and error. How are you feeling right now Maya?" said Wario-Ware-Man while looking over to Maya, and sees that her condition has sunk even lower compared to earlier.

"Alright, you sure don't look too good right now... anyway, I better get going. No time to waste here!" said Wario-Ware-Man and begins his little experiment in making his own medicine.

Wario-Ware-Man starts by pouring water into the cooking pot and boils it. He then opens some of the medicine bottles and pours a little bit of each bottle into the pot and mixes it with a wooden spoon. It seems to be taking a bit of time before it all boils, so Wario-Ware-Man takes the chance to look at Maya as he waits for the medicine to be done.

"Hm. I must say that Maya is really having it rather tough right now... can only hope that my experiment works..." said Wario-Ware-Man.

After waiting for a couple more minutes the cooking pot has finished boiling. Wario-Ware-Man pours some of the newly made medicine into one of the empty bottles he got permission to borrow from the Pharmacy owner.

"Alright, it's finally finished. Now we've just got to test and see if it works..." said Wario-Ware-Man and wakes up Maya to give her the medicine he just made.

After having been convinced Maya drinks her medicine, with Wario-Ware-Man waiting with nervousity over the result. Nothing seems to change though, because Maya's still coughing, with a running nose and everything.

"Hm, no difference... ok, back to making a new kind of medicine..." said Wario-Ware-Man and goes back to the cooking pot to start making the medicine all over again, this time pouring some different flasks into the pot. After it has finished boiling Wario-Ware-Man prepares a new bottle for Maya.

"Alright, try the medicine again. This time it should make some difference." said Wario-Ware-Man and gives the bottle to Maya.

"Well, let's hope for the best..." said Maya and drinks all the medicine in the bottle and starts feeling in her body if anything gets better. At first nothing happens seems to happen, but after around half a minute the medicine seems to have an effect, only not to Wario-Ware-Man's expectation; Maya suddenly loses the ability to talk, and because of that he can't understand what she's saying.

"Ok, so the new medicine I made makes it so the person who takes it loses his or her voice completely. I hope it's only temporary... anyway, back to my experimental corner again..." said Wario-Ware-Man and prepares some new medicine again, and pours it into the bottle.

He gives the bottle to Maya who drinks it all up. To Wario-Ware-Man's horror though, the new medicine only makes Maya feel even more sick, and she starts to feel even hotter and feverish on her forehead.

"No, no, NO! The medicine is supposed to cure Maya, NOT make her feel worse!! ... my garlic, this is much harder than I thought!" said Wario-Ware-Man in complete disbelief and worry.

Wario-Ware-Man tries everything he can to make his medicine cure Maya from the poison. But no matter whichever way he goes on about it, nothing seems to work. After numerous attempts, Wario-Ware-Man are now on the edge of giving up.

"Nope. I'm sorry Maya, but it's just not working. No matter what I do it all just goes completely wrong..." said Wario-Ware-Man.

"sniffs but you promised you would find a cure... please Wario-Ware-Man, don't give up now!" said Maya and starts feeling the strong pain that she had earlier.

"Ooh... I really regret stumbling upon that stupid Wario-Nose now..." said Maya.

"I know. But you couldn't know that the Wario-Nose would be poisonous. I'm more or less just irritated over me not having succeeded in making a cure... if only it wasn't this hard..." said Wario-Ware-Man.

"Sigh... in situations such as this, what would've soothed my nerves now is some honey..." said Maya.

"Possibly... wait a minute, would it... aha, I think I've found the solution!" said Wario-Ware-Man.

"What...?" said Maya.

"I've tried all the medicines I can think of, and none of them gave any positive results. The only thing I haven't tried yet is honey! Maybe this could be our last hope!" said Wario-Ware-Man.

"R-really??" said Maya in wonder.

"Exactly! I'll give a call to my siblings to tell them to go down to Konsum and buy a honey jar or two." said Wario-Ware-Man and pulls up his mobile phone to start calling his siblings.

Meanwhile at the restaurant, VARIO has got into trouble with a Biker-Woodster, with the latter being the first to start the entire argument. One of the personell are now keeping hold of them both so tight that they can't go anywhere else.

"Let me go, it was that dumb log that started it first!" said VARIO.

"Ha, nonsense! It was the fatso who started it first, heh heh..." said the Biker-Woodster.

"Stop with it, both of you. If you're going to keep arguing like this I'm afraid we have no choice but to kick you out of the restaurant." said the Dumb-Crow personell.

"For the tenth time, I saw who it was; it is that Biker-Woodster in your left hand who is responsible for it all!" Warrio told the Dumb-Crow personell.

"They both look guilty to me, and we don't tolerate troublemakers in here." said the Dumb-Crow personell.

"But I, err..." Warrio is about to start arguing even further until he hears his mobile phone ringing.

"Right, hello... Ah, Wario-Ware-Man. So how's it all going?... What? That sure doesn't sound good... sure, we can do it for you... yep, our time in this restaurant seems to be over now anyway... well, a Biker-Woodster came in moments ago and took the opportunity to also irritate VARIO, leading to a argument between the two... Alright, we'll be coming as quick as we can. Ok, bye bye." said Warrio and puts his phone down.

"W-who was it?" VARIO asked Warrio while still being held by the Dumb-Crow personell.

"It was Wario-Ware-Man, and Maya seems to have gotten even worse by now. He wants us to go and get some honey jars for him, and we better be quick about it too!" said Warrio.

"Alright. If only this dumb personell would let me go now!!" said VARIO.

"Absolutely not! You and your little log buddy here aren't going anywhere." said the Dumb-Crow personell.

"That Biker-Woodster in your hand, is NOT my buddy!!" said VARIO.

"Enough nonsense now! Personell, can you please let VARIO go now? It wasn't he who started it all in the first place!" Warrio told the Dumb-Crow personell.

"Doesn't matter. They both are..." said the Dumb-Crow personell.

"Just, let him go now, so we can leave!" Anyway, I don't think there has been any form of damage being done in this restaurant." said Warrio.

"Aha, have you got any proof?" asked the Dumb-Crow personell.

"Hm..." said Warrio and looks at a trolley with plates, glasses, and so on, and kicks it with his foot so it tips over, with all the plates and such breaking.

"Oh no, how wrong I must have been. Something DID fall down after all! Let's see who the responsible one might be..." said Wario-Ware-Man and looks around the restaurant, and quickly points at the Biker-Woodster.

"THIS is the guilty guy!!" said Warrio while pointing at the Biker-Woodster.

"Aha, so it was YOU after all! I thought there was someting smelly about you." said the Dumb-Crow personell.

"But, but it wasn't I..." said the Biker-Woodster.

"Don't try to sneak your way out of this mess. I know your tricks! As punishment for the damage to our plates and glasses, you will be put on washing the dishes for 7 hours!!" the Dumb-Crow personell told the Biker-Woodster.

"Aw heck..." said the Biker-Woodster and goes to the kitchen to wash the dishes.

"Sorry for this whole misunderstanding. You may leave now." the Dumb-Crow personell told Warrio and VARIO.

"Don't worry. It happens all the time these days." said Warrio.

"Phew, at last I'm free to go!" said VARIO.

"Yep. Now come on VARIO, we've really got to hurry off to Konsum. We have a sick young girl who is waiting for us!" said Warrio.

"Coming Warrio!... gotta wonder what made that trolley just fall over like that..." said VARIO and heads out of the restaurant with Warrio to buy some honey at Konsum.

Back outside the pharmacy the situation doesn't look too good; Maya is suffering a lot from her current condition, with the Wario-Nose poison almost having fully kicked in.

"My garlic, I really hope they get here in time. Maya is feeling even worse now, and are almost on her way up to the clouds soon..." said Wario-Ware-Man to himself.

"Wario-Ware-Man...?" said Maya, who is now having a big blanket over herself.

"Yes, what is it?" asked Wario-Ware-Man.

"Would you sit here and keep me company? I... I don't wanna be alone while I'm on my last hours of living on this planet..." said Maya.

"Sigh... Alright." said Wario-Ware-Man and does so, but not without letting out a little sigh, both because he doesn't feel comfortable with it, and also due to the situation which is still ongoing.

Warrio and VARIO meanwhile are now seen hurrying towards the pharmacy, carrying a bunch of honey jars with them.

"Phew, pant Was it really necessary to buy so many jars??" VARIO asked Warrio.

"Maybe not. But better too many jars rather than just one. It is a big emergency now! And we've got to keep our tempo up, or Maya will probably get so bad she won't be able to even live anymore!" said Warrio.

"Right right, I'm running as fast as I can!" said VARIO.

Warrio and VARIO keeps running as fast as possible. It turns out that they're forced to run through the entire town since they don't really know where the pharmacy is located.

Back outside the pharmacy again, Wario-Ware-Man has been waiting for his siblings for some time. Maya meanwhile are still lying down with her eyes closed, and is almost on her way to sleep in due to the poison now almost having fully kicked in.

"When are those guys coming?? We have a giant bee here who is about to pass away sooner or later... one can only hope for them to turn up." said Wario-Ware-Man and looks around the place to see if his siblings appears anywhere. There's still no sign of them though.

"Sigh, it is just as I suspected; Warrio and VARIO just forgot about it all and gone back home again... or maybe something's happened to them? Again, you can't really be sure when it comes to Warrio and VARIO..." said Wario-Ware-Man. When he is almost about to give it all up, Wario-Ware-Man finally sees Warrio and VARIO coming, carrying a lot of honey jars with them.

"Ah, there you are! I really started to wonder where you guys wandered off to." said Wario-Ware-Man.

"Aw, we were just having trouble finding this Pharmacy building. But now we're here with everything that's needed to make the cure!" said Warrio.

"And is it enough jars now?" asked Wario-Ware-Man.

"Yep. We probably bought at least 50 of them or so." said Warrio.

"Ok, then we can finally get started! This time we SHALL succeed in making a cure for Maya!" said Wario-Ware-Man.

Wario-Ware-Man and siblings sets off in their new attempt to make a cure for Wario-Nose poison. They are being quick with pouring all the ingredients into the cooking pot because time is growing nigh, and it seems that quite a lot of honey jars are seeing use. After some mixing and fiddling around the cure is finally done.

"Alright, now it's the moment of truth, to see if the cure will actually work... ok Maya, time to wake up!" said Wario-Ware-Man and wakes Maya up.

"Naw... I just wanna sleep now..." said Maya.

"No sleeping now Maya. It is time for your medicine!" said Wario-Ware-Man.

"Sigh. Not again... alright, I'll take the medicine. But if it doesn't work... then I don't even wanna try anymore..." said Maya.

"Well, let's just hope that it all works out now..." said Wario-Ware-Man.

Maya takes the big medicine glass and drinks it. After she's been drinking it all up Wario-Ware-Man and siblings waits with baited breath to see if it has any effect on her. Despite their hard efforts though, nothing seems to change.

"Oh noo... We've been hard at brewing this darn cure, and still Maya isn't getting any better... it's hopeless, a lost cause... I admit defeat by this point... I've done everything I can now, and not even a bit of honey helps..." said Wario-Ware-Man and presses himself down over his failure. At the same time Warrio notices something happening.

"Um, Wario-Ware-Man..." Warrio tried to tell him.

"Not now Warrio... I can't even make any medicines. I'm good at inventing stuff, but making cures for illnesses I'm just so hopeless at... our best friend is about to pass away thanks to a fatso who has completely failed in..." said Wario-Ware-Man.

"Wario-Ware-Man! It's not what you think it is... Maya is starting to feel better now!!" said Warrio. After hearing Warrio saying this Wario-Ware-Man turns to see Maya finally starting to wake up.

"I... I just can't believe it... Wahoo, the cure is working!!" said Wario-Ware-Man.

"See? Our hard work did pay off in the end!" said Warrio.

"It did. And I do feel better now... don't know if I want to stand up on my own legs yet... and I'm still not feeling completely like myself..." said Maya.

"Yeah. It might take a while for the cure to really kick in." said Wario-Ware-Man.

"Whew... I thought for a moment there that Maya would really be a goner for good." said VARIO.

"Thankfully that didn't happen, and the cure really did work!" said Warrio.

"It sure did. On a different note, before we can go home I have to go in and pay the owner of the pharmacy for all the stuff I had to borrow. Hopefully it won't be a lot of money..." said Wario-Ware-Man.

With Maya now feeling better (and Wario-Ware-Man having to pay the pharmacy owner for having used nearly all the medicines), they're all now heading back home, reflecting over the day that has just been.

"Phew... I'm like all burnt out by now..." said Wario-Ware-Man.

"Yeah. It was quite tough just trying to make the medicine. And prior to that me and VARIO had a bit of trouble down at the restaurant." said Warrio.

"Yeah yeah. The one thing that matters is that everything has been ending on a good note, especially for Maya... who is still a giant for some reason despite the Wario-Nose poison being pretty much gone from her body." said Wario-Ware-Man.

"Well, I also am a bit perplexed over it. By now I should be back to my normal size, but... something within my body still wants me to remain big, apparently..." said Maya and suddenly trips on her foot.

"Aaah!!" said Maya as she falls down on the ground.

"Maya, are you ok?? Don't tell me that thing is starting to return again! ... or?" said Wario-Ware-Man.

"I'm doing alright Wario-Ware-Man. But it seems like I've just landed on something, because I can feel two bumps under my behind..." said Maya and looks under her crotch where Warrio and VARIO are now lying, completely flattened under her weight.

"Sigh, looks like I'm having to lie under Maya like a flattened seagull again..." said VARIO.

"Agreed... it sure hurts quite a bit..." said Warrio.

"Hi guys. Having it good down there?" said Maya and giggles a little while wiggling her fingers at Warrio and VARIO.

Back in the present, Wario-Ware-Man's last flashback has finally concluded, and even now he's still holding on to the cooking pot he used to make the cure with.

"Well, it sure was tough going to make the cure for Maya. But my garlic! It sure is quite shocking at least to me, that so much time have passed by now. Makes me wish to just go back in time and relieve all those experiences..." said Wario-Ware-Man and briefly considers the idea of going back in time to relieve his older days, but eventually decides against it.

"Naw, I don't think I want to. What has come before is already gone. The best thing to do is to just let these early experiences remain as memories. Who knows, maybe I'll change my mind about it... but that will be later of course." said Wario-Ware-Man and brushes the thought aside.

Wario-Ware-Man keeps rooting in the boxes for the photo album, and from here on whatever else he finds isn't going to recall any major memories of his. The next thing he finds is a rather strange-looking golf club.

"What a strange-looking golf club... aha, this golf club was found by VARIO in some forest when he, Warrio, and I were out playing golf in earlier times. The only thing I can recall, is it was this club that were the cause for all sorts of disasters which happened during that day, as well as any subsequent times we happened to stumble upon this cursed golf club..." said Wario-Ware-Man and puts the golf club aside, and in another box he finds a very old book.

"A old book... wonder what's written on it." said Wario-Ware-Man and starts reading the book. The only thing he can see written in it is the word "TEST" on every single page.

"Why the word "TEST"??... Ah, this is, or was the diary of Poobah the Pharaoh. Even to this day, I still don't understand WHY the pharaoh wrote this, and ONLY this word throughout the entire book..." said Wario-Ware-Man and just puts the book back in the box.

Feeling he has gone through nearly every single box in the attic, Wario-Ware-Man starts looking elsewhere for the photo album. Behind an old CRT TV of theirs he spots an empty square cage with bars on each side.

"A cage?? Hm, I can't quite remember what exactly it would've been used for. What is it even doing in the attic in the first place?" said Wario-Ware-Man to himself in wonder.

"Gotta admit that this old TV here sure must be getting around, even if it isn't working anymore. At least to my knowledge..." said Wario-Ware-Man while briefly looking at the TV. He leaves the cage and finds a very old cauldron next to the TV.

"Hm, this cauldron brings back a memory of sorts... I remember that it once belonged to Wario at one point from our earliest days. He used it for making himself some gold with." said Wario-Ware-Man. He leaves the cauldron and stands up on his feet again.

"Nope. I can't find the photo album anywhere in here. I wonder where it has gone to... ah well, maybe I'll find it another time." said Wario-Ware-Man and is about to leave the attic since he hasn't found what he's looking for. Before heading out he spots a old mirror. Behind it he finds the very thing he's been looking for. Wario-Ware-Man just smacks his forehead.

"Aw, so it was behind this mirror all the time?? Ah well, you sure do easily forget where you put things in the attic, especially if there's lots of boxes and such everywhere... anyway, now that I've finally found the album, I might as well put the new photos in it and head out of the attic. Who knows for how long I've been in here..." said Wario-Ware-Man and picks up the photo album, and puts the new photos into the later empty pages of it.

"Hm, having relieved all these memories of mine, I can only wonder what new things might await me and my siblings in the future... anyway, I better head out of the attic now..." said Wario-Ware-Man and heads out of the attic. He closes the door, leaving just a black screen with a "The End" graphic appearing in the middle, truly indicating the end of the series that have just been.

The End...